this book presents a unified and systematic philosophical account of human actions and their explanation and it does it in the spirit of scientific realism in addition various other related topics such as psychological concept formation and the nature of mental events and states are discussed this is due to the fact that the key problems in the philosophy of psychology are interconnected to a high degree this interwovenness has affected the discussion of these problems in that often the same topic is discussed in several contexts in the book i hope the reader does not find this too frustrating the theory of action developed in this book especially in its latter half is a causalist one in a sense it can be regarded as an explication and refinement of a typical common sense view of actions and the mental episodes causally responsible for them it has of course not been possible to discuss all the relevant philosophical problems in great detail even if i have regarded it as necessary to give a brief treatment of relatively many problems rather i have concentrated on some key issues and hope that future research will help to clarify the rest henderson examines the foundations of an analytic social science approach to develop a well integrated account of the human sciences focusing on the pivotal notions of interpretation and explanation the author acknowledges the importance of interpretive understanding in the human sciences and proposes a methodology that reflects both interpretive practice as well as scientific methodology he refutes the methodological separatists who hold that the logic of explanation and testing in the human sciences is fundamentally different from that of the natural sciences and examines in detail the constraints on interpretation in providing an integrated treatment of these two central issues in social science henderson offers a thorough analysis of the adequacy of interpretation and the nature of explanation in the human sciences
