the ancient theravada buddhist canonical suttas the beloved mahayana buddhist sutras and the tao te ching have been lovingly mined for concepts and realizations these ideas resonate with the heart of the teachings of jesus the nazarene as preserved in the christian gospels presented in the arrangement and context of buddha s noble eightfold path the truths presented are timeless and universal as a complete religion in themselves says the author the author describes the book as serving as the message of jesus to the world in the context of christian of eastern thought and points out that it is not really a christian work this is foremost a buddhist writing devoted to the same dharma that buddha so loved and taught 2500 years ago it is presented through the teachings of the one who is called the christ in the western world then again this is not really a buddhist work as the linkage the author has made between the concepts of christ and buddha create a synthesis that transcends christianity and buddhism the heart of this dharma cannot really be defined or confined by a system of thought it lives on the immediacy of the expression of those who take it to heart

it is possible to be a christian buddhist in the context of a universal belief that sits fairly lightly on both traditions ross thompson takes especially seriously the aspects of each faith that seem incompatible with the other no god and no soul in buddhism for example and the need for grace and the historical atonement on the cross in christianity buddhist christianity can be no bland blend of the tamer aspects of both faiths but must result from a wrestling of the seeming incompatibles allowing each faith to shake the other to its very foundations the author traces his personal journey through which his need for both faiths became painfully apparent he explores the buddha and jesus through their teachings and the varied communities that flow from them investigating their different understandings of suffering and wrong self and liberation meditation and prayer cosmology and god or not he concludes with a bold commitment to both faiths max müller often recognized as the father of the history of religions made the prediction i believe the final struggle between buddhism and christianity whenever that comes to pass will be a hard one and will end in a compromise there is a prophecy this comparative study between judaism christianity and buddhism is itself the key which opens the door to the understanding and fulfillment of that prediction the first comparative work is a surprisingly contrasting presentation of major teachings in opposition between judaism and christianity whereas the second study is equally profound in its revelation of the true spiritual relationship that exists between the buddha and the christ which is at the very heart of max müller s prophecy
