with this book david de vaus has written one of the best general research methods textbooks around the use of different types of research design as the point of departure is a different and very helpful approach to take especially since many textbooks confuse issues of method and design the author outlines with great clarity a wide variety of issues including testing theories causation data analysis and the main considerations involved in using the different research designs covered both students and their instructors will find this an extremely valuable well written book professor alan bryman university of loughborough a wonderful opportunity for research design students and practitioners to think more about the planning and process of research design forum for qualitative social research this book is intended to show social science students the importance of attending to design issues when undertaking social research one of the main problems in doing practical research is that design and structure are inappropriate for the uses of research they often do not support the conclusions that are drawn from it several research methods books focus on data collection strategy and statistical analysis while these issues are pertinent this book argues that the core of research methods is the structure and design of the research the book provides students with a clear understanding of the importance of research design and its place in the research process describes the main types of research designs in social research explains the logic and purposes of design to enable students to evaluate particular research strategies equips students with the design skills to operate in real world research situations the book is divided into five parts part one explores issues about types of research research concepts research questions causality and basic issues in the design process the remaining four parts focus on different types of research design experimental longitudinal cross sectional and case study methods are clearly and systematically examined and their strengths and weaknesses are described the result is a one stop critical guide to design in social research that students and researchers will find invaluable david de vaus classic text surveys in social research provides clear advice on how to plan conduct and analyse social surveys it emphasises the links between theory and research the logic and interpretation of statistics and the practices of social research this sixth edition has been completely revised and updated and contains new examples data and extensive lists of web resources as well as explaining how to conduct good surveys de vaus shows how to become a critical consumer of research he argues that the logic of surveys and statistics is simply an extension of the logic we use in everyday life analysis however requires creativity and imagination rather than the application of sterile mechanical procedures the prime goal of research should be to gain accurate understanding and as a researcher use methods and techniques which enhance understanding de vaus advocates researchers use the method rather than letting the method use you surveys in social research is essential reading for students and researchers working with surveys it assumes no background in statistical analysis and gives you the tools you need to come to grips with this often challenging field of work scientific workflows have emerged as a key technology that assists scientists with the design management execution sharing and reuse of in silico experiments workflow management systems simplify the management of scientific workflows by providing graphical interfaces for their development monitoring and analysis nowadays e science combines such workflow management systems with large scale data and computing resources into complex research infrastructures for instance e science allows the conveyance of best practice research in collaborations by providing workflow repositories which facilitate the sharing and reuse of scientific workflows however scientists are still faced with different limitations while reusing workflows one of the most common challenges they meet is the need to select appropriate applications and their individual execution parameters if scientists do not want to rely on default or experience based parameters the best effort option is to test different workflow set ups using either trial and error approaches or parameter sweeps both methods may be inefficient or time consuming respectively especially when tuning a large number of parameters therefore scientists require an effective and efficient mechanism that automatically tests different workflow set ups in an intelligent way and will help them to improve their scientific results this thesis addresses the limitation described above by defining and implementing an approach for the optimization of scientific workflows in the course of this work scientists needs are investigated and requirements are formulated resulting in an appropriate optimization concept in a following step this concept is prototypically implemented by extending a workflow management system with an optimization framework including general mechanisms required to conduct workflow optimization as optimization is an ongoing research topic different algorithms are provided by pluggable extensions plugins that can be loosely coupled with the framework resulting in a generic and quickly extendable system in this thesis an exemplary plugin is introduced which applies a genetic algorithm for parameter optimization in order to accelerate and therefore make workflow optimization feasible at all e science infrastructures are utilized for the parallel execution of scientific workflows this is empowered by additional extensions enabling the execution of applications and workflows on distributed computing resources the actual implementation and therewith the general approach of workflow optimization is experimentally verified by four use cases in the life science domain all workflows were significantly improved which demonstrates the advantage of the proposed workflow optimization finally a new collaboration based approach is introduced that harnesses optimization provenance to make optimization faster and more robust in the future
