in this new book on the rise of commercial black mega churches mary hinton examines the rich legacy of the historic black church from the dual perspectives of theology and religious education she explores the new religious models emerging from the tradition of the historic black church and questions whether they are continuing to operate and practice according to the wisdom of this unique form of american religion two mega church ministries those of t d jakes and creflo dollar are examined in detail with regards to how they align with black church religious history hinton concludes by proposing that the fastest growing religious phenomenon within and outside of the black community in the united states the mega church should no longer be analyzed based on size alone instead hinton urges readers to consider the ecclesiastical structures of churches in making appropriate assessments in determining should and should not be classified as a commercial church for the souls of black folks examines the impact of black religious culture in shaping the ethical values and sociopolitical condition of u s blacks the book reviews the nexus of theological traditions and historical factors that have formed black churches as environments where preachers serve as the moral compass for black churchgoers for the souls of black folks builds upon the work of sociologist w e b du bois who highlighted the presence of a double consciousness in the collective psyche of blacks stemming from racial oppression the book explores the ways in which that double consciousness often reflected in black preaching socializes black christians to subjugate their own moral authority to that of black preachers the central argument is that this socialization to submit to preachers greatly underserves black churchgoers in developing and exercising their own power and authority as social agents and thus significantly impedes the full sociopolitical liberation of all blacks the book offers important new preaching strategies that more effectively facilitate the empowerment of blacks as critical agents of social transformation and healing in the twenty first century in a world where pain often hides behind polished pews and quiet prayers trauma informed theology an african american intimate partner violence intervention tool for the pentecostal clergy offers a spirit led invitation to heal rooted in lived ministry academic insight and deep compassion bridget robinson weaves trauma informed theology into the pentecostal context to address intimate partner violence grief and generational trauma especially within the african american community this is a book that speaks directly to our experiences this book is not just theoretical it s pastoral and prophetic a practical guide grounded in theological reflection through personal narrative biblical insight and a trauma informed framework robinson calls clergy caregivers and scholars to move beyond performative strength into sacred vulnerability the kind that creates space for real healing drawing from hermeneutic phenomenology and spirit filled scholarship this work urges the church to confront the theologies that silence survivors and retraumatize the wounded clarity and compassion equip readers to listen more deeply respond more faithfully and lead more tenderly whether used in seminary classrooms ministry training or personal study this timely resource calls us to cultivate courageous compassion rooted in justice led by love and sustained by the breath of the holy spirit
