in realistic visionary the renowned george washington scholar peter henriques seeks to humanize the first president without diminishing him henriques s washington makes mistakes is sensitive to criticism and is slow to accept blame but he is also the greatest man of his age a relentless pragmatist who could nonetheless envision what a free and united America could be for millions unborn rather than revisiting Washington's life in its entirety. Henriques constructs a biographical portrait by addressing the vital themes and events through which Washington the man is revealed. What emerge most clearly in this realistic vision are Washington's successful struggle to channel his monumental personal ambition into public service and his unrivaled ability to turn his ambitious visions for the fledgling nation into reality.

The thesis of this study is that Christian Science was a manifestation of the unrest gripping the United States after the Civil War. The age in which the movement flowered was at once sordid and gilded, commercial and optimistic. The stormy way through which the new religion passed was in a sense the road upon which all new ideas and schemes are tried. Mrs. Eddy's vision was subjected to reasoned and irrational scrutiny for 40 years. In truth, Christian Science belonged only tenuously to a modern era. It reflected the prevailing optimism, progressivism, utopianism, and feminism of the Gilded Age but did not illuminate the stage with a unique light of its own.
