contemporaries steiner's ideas did not remain abstract within his lifetime he was able to design and construct a number of buildings including his architectural masterpiece the goetheanum a center for culture and arts near basle switzerland in these lectures steiner describes with reference to the goetheanum the importance of an architecturally coherent and integrated community and how this in turn affects social unity and harmony these lectures offer a panorama of the development of architecture in parallel with the emerging human soul in human evolution this is a valuable collection for all students of architecture the arts social science and those looking for a deeper spiritual understanding of the art of architecture includes eight color plates and 30 black white illustrations contents part one the temple is the human being an art architecture that reveals the underlying wholeness of creation the task of modern art architecture proposals for the architecture of a model anthroposophical community at dornach part two ways to a new style of architecture true artistic creation art as the creation of organs through which the gods speak to us a new concept of architecture the aesthetic laws of form the creative world of color appendix the evolution of architecture at the turn of each new millennium notes color plates architecture as a synthesis of the arts is a translation from german of wege zu einem neuen baustil und der bau wird mensch

how psychological ideas of space have profoundly affected architectural and artistic expression in the twentieth century beginning with agoraphobia and claustrophobia in the late nineteenth century followed by shell shock and panic fear after world war i phobias and anxiety came to be seen as the mental condition of modern life they became incorporated into the media and arts in particular the spatial arts of architecture urbanism and film this spatial warping is now being reshaped by digitalization and virtual reality anthony vidler is concerned with two forms of warped space the first a psychological space is the repository of neuroses and phobias this space is not empty but full of disturbing forms including those of architecture and the city the second kind of warping is produced when artists break the boundaries of genre to depict space in new ways vidler traces the emergence of a psychological idea of space from pascal and freud to the identification of agoraphobia and claustrophobia in the nineteenth century to twentieth century theories of spatial alienation and estrangement in the writings of georg simmel siegfried kracauer and walter benjamin focusing on current conditions of displacement and placelessness he examines ways in which contemporary artists and architects have produced new forms of spatial warping the discussion ranges from theorists such as jacques lacan and gilles deleuze to artists such as vito acconci mike kelley martha rosler and rachel whiteread finally vidler looks at the architectural experiments of frank gehry coop Himmelblau daniel libeskind greg lynn morphosis and eric owen moss in the light of new digital techniques that while relying on traditional perspective have radically transformed the composition production and experience perhaps even the subject itself of architecture an important resource for scholars of contemporary art and architecture this volume considers contemporary art that takes architecture as its subject concentrated on works made since 1990 contemporary art about architecture a strange utility is the first to take up this topic in a sustained and explicit manner and the first to advance the idea that contemporary art functions as a form of architectural history theory and analysis over the course of fourteen essays by both emerging and established scholars this volume examines a diverse group of artists in conjunction with the vernacular canonical and fantastical structures engaged by their work i manglano ovalle matthew barney monika sosnowska pipo nguyen duy and paul pfeiffer are among those considered as are the compelling questions of architecture s relationship to photography the evolving legacy of mies van der rohe the notion of an architectural unconscious and the provocative concepts of the unbuilt and the unbuildable through a rigorous investigation of these issues contemporary art about architecture calls attention to the fact that art is now a vital form of architectural discourse indeed this phenomenon is both pervasive and in its individual incarnations compelling a reason to think again about the entangled histories of architecture and art contemporary art about architecture is the first to take up its topic in a sustained and explicit manner and the first to advance the idea that contemporary art increasingly functions as a form of architectural history theory and analysis it examines a diverse group of artists including iñigo manglano ovalle matthew barney monika sosnowska pipo nguyen duy paul pfeiffer and mies van der rohe in conjunction with the vernacular canonical and fantastical structures engaged by their work known for and even overshadowed by his brutal and spectacular building cuts gordon matta clark's oeuvre is unique in the history of american art he worked in the 1970s on the borders between art and architecture and his diverse practice is often understood as an outright rejection of the tenets of high modernism stephen walker argues instead for the artist's ambivalent relationship with the architectural heritage he is often claimed to disavow thus making this the first book to extrapolate matta clark's thinking beyond its immediate context walker considers the broad range of matta clark's ephemeral practice from montage to actual interventions and from performance art and installation to drawing film and video bringing to the fore the consistent themes and issues explored through this broad range of media and in particular the complex notion of the discreet violation he reveals the continued relevance of matta clark's artistic and theoretical oeuvre to the reception of artistic and architectural work today tales of terror mythoi of the macabre phobic fantasies and numinous narratives have played an integral role in collective cultural expression since antiquity it was however in 19th century europe that weird fiction reached its first apogee as a cultural and political antithesis to the adverse conditions of modern life it expressed western society's collective disappointment with the enlightenment's unrealized promises for a better world capturing the agony of urban populations in suffocating industrial cities the suffering caused by centuries of ongoing military confrontation and the hopelessness of the common citizen in the wake of rapid and complex technological and political change this volume presents a rational demystification of irrational cultural expressions with the dual intention of being used as both an academic reference and a popular guide into the realm of chimeric cultural visions it analyzes the correlation of urban mythologies and their concurrent cultural paradigms tracing the impact of the collective subconscious through literature comic strips cinematography music architecture and art in the early twentieth century chinese traditional architecture and the french derived methods of the École des beaux arts converged in the united states when chinese students were given scholarships to train as architects at american universities whose design curricula were dominated by beaux arts methods upon their return home in the 1920s and 1930s these graduates began to practice architecture and create china's first architectural schools often transferring a version of what they had learned in the u s to chinese situations the resulting complex series of design related transplantations had major implications for china between 1911 and 1949 as it simultaneously underwent cataclysmic social economic and political changes after 1949 and the founding of the people's republic china experienced a radically different wave of influence from the beaux arts through advisors from the soviet union who first under stalin and later khrushchev brought beaux arts ideals in the guise of socialist progress in the early twenty first century china is still feeling the effects of these events chinese architecture and the beaux arts examines the coalescing of the two major architectural systems placing significant shifts in architectural theory and practice in china within relevant contemporary cultural and educational contexts fifteen major scholars from around the world analyze and synthesize these crucial events to shed light on the dramatic architectural and urban changes occurring in china today many of which have global ramifications this stimulating and generously illustrated work is divided into three sections framed by an introduction and a postscript the first focuses on the convergence of chinese architecture and the École des beaux arts outlining the salient aspects of each and suggesting how and why the two met in the u s the second section centers on the question of how chinese architects were influenced by the beaux arts and how chinese architecture was changed as a result the third takes an even closer look at the beaux arts influence addressing how innovative practices new schools of architecture and buildings whose designs were linked to beaux arts assumptions led to distinctive new paradigms that were rooted in a changing china by virtue of its scope scale and scholarship this volume promises to become a classic in the fields of chinese and western architectural history contributors tony atkin peter j carroll yung ho chang jeffrey w cody kerry sizheng fan fu chao ching gu daqing seng kuan delin lai xing ruan joseph rykwert nancy s steinhardt david vanzanten rudolf wagner zhang jie zhao chen this edited volume considers the ways in which multiple stages phases or periods in an artistic or design process have served to arrive at the final artifact with a focus on the meaning and use of the iteration to contextualize iteration within artistic and architectural production this collection of essays presents a range of close studies in art architectural and design history using archival and historiographical research media theory photography material studies and critical theory it examines objects as unique yet mutable works by examining their antecedents successive exemplars and their afterlives and thus their role as organizers or repositories of meaning key are the roles of writing the use of media and relationships between object image and reproduction this volume asks how a closer look at iteration reveals new perspectives into the production of objects and the production of thought alike written by an international team of contributors offering a range of perspectives it looks broadly at meaning and insight offered by the iteration for processes of design for historical research and for the reception of creative works from the time of the foundation of its cathedral in 597 canterbury has been the epicentre of britain s ecclesiastical history and an exceptionally important centre for architectural and visual innovation focusing especially but not exclusively on christ church cathedral this legacy is explored in seventeen essays concerned with canterbury s art architecture and archaeology between the early anglo saxon period and the close of the middle ages papers consider the relationship between between architectural setting and liturgical practice and between stationary and movable fittings while fresh insights are offered into the aesthetic spiritual and pragmatic considerations that shaped the fabric of christ church and st augustine s abbey alongside critical reflections on canterbury s historiography and relationship to the wider world taken together these studies demonstrate the richness of the surviving material and its enduring ability to raise new questions
