the idea that home is a special place a separate place a place where we can be our true selves is so obvious to us today that we barely pause to think about it but as judith flanders shows in this revealing book home is a relatively new concept when in 1900 dorothy assured the citizens of oz that there is no place like home she was expressing a view that was a culmination of 300 years of economic physical and emotional change in the making of home flanders traces the evolution of the house across northern europe and america from the sixteenth to the early twentieth century and paints a striking picture of how the homes we know today differ from homes through history the transformation of houses into homes she argues was not a private matter but an essential ingredient in the rise of capitalism and the birth of the industrial revolution without home the modern world as we know it would not exist and as flanders charts the development of ordinary household objects from cutlery chairs and curtains to fitted kitchens plumbing and windows she also peels back the myths that surround some of our most basic assumptions including our entire notion of what it is that makes a family as full of fascinating detail as her previous bestsellers the making of home is also a book teeming with original and provocative ideas geography of home is a meditative tour of the home busch looks at the emotional attachments we have to a house and the way those attachments change with time and technology we are so familiar with the features of our homes the rooms fixtures and myriad little decorative details that we have forgotten how to look at them we might explore a church read a book or watch a film and attempt to decode its symbols and references but we rarely look at our homes with the same critical eye yet from the most ordinary apartment to the most extravagant mansion every home is a deep well of meaning from windows to wardrobes fireplaces to door knockers edwin heathcote attempts to fathom the elements of our everyday domestic lives he explores how over time ancient ritual elements transmute into practical features and how some of these charged with latent symbolic meaning have persisted in modern dwellings despite having lost their original uses home will never quite look the same again three years into the new millennium sir terence conran has once again reinvented his concept of home design now a harmonious blur between public and private living with a soupcon of professionalism the conran movement stores and style began in 1974 with the house book and was updated as the new house book in 1985 and the essential house book in 1994 the significance of the newly added word home in the title should not be overlooked as the author has gravitated toward lecorbusier s 1927 statement everybody quite rightly dreams of sheltering himself in a sure and permanent home of his own ultimate appeals to this primal notion of belonging starting with an aspirational visual introduction before separating ideas into three distinct sections home life or the different stages of design from first house to empty nest home work exploring all options for decorating from paint versus plaster to remodeling versus new construction and compendium the nitty gritty information so necessary to understanding and making design choices a feat worthy of any bookshelf barbara jacobs copyright american library association all rights reserved a comprehensive guide to all aspects of home life from cooking and cleaning to decor and organization abbott s clear concise writing style and wealth of knowledge make this book an essential resource for anyone looking to make their home a more comfortable and inviting space this work has been selected by scholars as being culturally important and is part of the knowledge base of civilization as we know it this work is in the public domain in the united states of america and possibly other nations within the united states you may freely copy and distribute this work as no entity individual or corporate has a copyright on the body of the work scholars believe and we concur that this work is important enough to be preserved reproduced and made generally available to the public we appreciate your support of the preservation process and thank you for being an important part of keeping this knowledge alive and relevant residential buildings domestic buildings the first things to be taken into account when building or remodelling a house is the space the number of square meters in each area how rooms are to be used and the relationship between them the function of each room is important when selecting materials which will be suitable and attractive it is also important to choose the style of decoration according to the possibilities offered by the spaces several of these decisions can be resolved by choosing a particular material for the flooring or the wall coverings in the chromatic tone wanted for the room or by the use of specific lighting to create the desired effect selecting lighting colours materials furnishings and accessories according to one s needs and personality will turn a house into a room a space created by the residents as an oasis to enjoy
