nothing better represented the early spirit of american expansion than the railroad dominant in daily life as well as in the popular imagination the railroad appealed strongly to creative writers for many years fiction of railroad life and travel was plentiful and varied as the nineteenth century receded the railroad's allure faded as did railroad fiction today it is hard to sense what the railroad once meant to americans the fiction of the railroad often by railroaders themselves recaptures that sense and provides valuable insights on american cultural history this extensively annotated bibliography lists and discusses in 956 entries novels and short stories from the 1840s to the present in which the railroad is important each entry includes plot and character description to help the reader make an informed decision on the source's merit a detailed introduction discusses the history of railroad fiction and highlights common themes such as strikes hoboes and the roles of women and african americans such writers of pure railroad fiction as harry bedwell frank packard and cy warman are well represented along with such literary artists as mark twain thomas Wolfe flannery o'connor and ellen glasgow work by minority writers including jean toomer richard wright frank chin and toni morrison also receives close attention an appendix organizes entries by decade of publication and the work is indexed by subject and title for nearly three decades writers from the university of arkansas programs in creative writing have traveled to arkansas's public and private schools to enrich classrooms by contributing a unique dose of teaching methods the workshops and sessions these writers teach open avenues for student creativity and sharpen students language skills across the state writers in the schools combines and condenses these proven techniques the lesson in this valuable text is that the imagination is the greatest tool a student possesses instead of lectures the book relies on hands on exercises and time tested activity plans that start students writing within minutes of discussing the basics of the writing process included are dozens of ideas to spark student creativity and hone rough drafts into finished poems and short stories the chapters proceed from a beginning level through intermediate and advanced levels and are useful to students in any grade from elementary through high school written and compiled by susan perabo a former writers in the schools director this volume is both a wonderful aid to teachers wishing to expand their classroom strategies in language arts and a perfect guide for writing program participants as they work with children to encourage powerful written expression in every discipline work and the coffee fueled day to day grind is the shared concern of these stories which have been chosen from among the hundreds that have appeared in the prestigious flannery o'connor award for short fiction series more than seventy volumes which include approximately eight hundred stories have won the flannery o'connor award this stunning trove of always engaging often groundbreaking short fiction is the common source for this anthology on work and for planned anthologies on such topics as family gender and sexuality animals and more sometimes work is rewarding and sometimes it's just demanding from the cubicle to the courtroom from the stage to the station these fifteen stories reflect upon the time we dedicate to the jobs we do from the moment we begin our commute to the second we return home and every hardworking hour in between
