already in 1854 Henry David Thoreau had declared in Walden that most men appear never to have considered what a house is. Like Thoreau, many other renowned American writers have considered what houses are and particularly what houses do, and they have created fictional dwellings that function not only as settings but as actual central characters in their works. The volume is specifically concerned with the structure, the organization, and the objects inside houses and argues that the space defined by rooms and their contents influences the consciousness, the imaginations, and the experiences of the humans who inhabit them. Winner of the Spanish Association for American Studies Javier Coy Award 2022 for best edited volume, contributors are Cristina Alsina, Rísquez Rodrigo, Andrés Vicent, Cucarella Ramon, Arturo Corujo, Mar Gallego, Ian Green, Michael Jonik, Wyn Kelley, Cynthia Lytle, Carme Manuel, Paula Martín, Salván Elena, Ortells Eva, Puyuelo Ureña, Dolores Resano, and Cynthia Stretch.

This volume addresses the political contexts in which nineteenth-century American literature was conceived, consumed, and criticized. It shows how a variety of literary genres and forms, such as poetry, drama, fiction, oratory, and nonfiction, engaged with political questions and participated in political debate.

American historians have typically argued that a shared experience of time worked to bind the antebellum nation together. Trains, technology, and expanding market forces catapulted the United States into the future on a straight line of progressive time. The nation's exceedingly diverse population could cluster around this common temporality as one forward-looking people. In a bold revision of this narrative, Archives of American Time examines American literature's figures and forms to disclose the competing temporalities that in fact defined the antebellum period through discussions that link literature's essential when the lord of the rings was published in the 1950 s it did not sit comfortably among any preconceived notions of literary genre the critical responses reflected the confusion for some it was an unwelcome reappearance of narrative standards that modernism was supposed to have done away with or just a bad novel others considered it a refreshing work in the epic and romance traditions ironically much of the critical prejudice regarding the question of genre in the lord of the rings has been motivated by the same kind of blindness that tolkien denounced in his famous 1936 lecture beowulf the monsters and the critics like beowulf tolkien s work has also failed to be properly appreciated and assessed due to a general refusal to accept the centrality of monsters because despite its monstrous originality and fantastic setting it is very clearly and not only chronologically at the centre of twentieth century literature the lord of the rings and the western narrative tradition is an attempt to account for the particular genre interaction that governs tolkien s tale and put it in a meaningful relationship with the contemporary literary context at the same time it is a quest to track down one of the most famous and elusive literary monsters of the past century by filling out a long neglected white space on the map of comparative literature and genre criticism the window is an everyday object and thus frequently appears in prose fiction however at the beginning of the nineteenth century the window emerges as a dominant motif in both painting and literature and has held an important position up to the present day this original study of the window in prose fiction in english shows that the window occurs as a distinct motif in the works of some of the major writers of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries appearing in the fiction of nathaniel hawthorne charles dickens the brontë sisters george eliot thomas hardy henry james oscar wilde james joyce virginia woolf f scott fitzgerald william faulkner ernest hemingway and vladimir nabokov the author attempts a new categorisation by differentiating between the window as a frame or limited opening and the window as a transparent medium separating inside and outside in contrast to conventional thematic interpretations the book focuses on the window s properties in relation to textual and narrative structures examining its appearance at the opening and close of a piece of fiction its use as a frame to a picture and its role in generating dual worlds
