jennifer griffiths's at risk black youth and the creative imperative in the post civil rights era focuses on literary representations of adolescent artists as they develop strategies to intervene against the stereotypes that threaten to limit their horizons the authors of the analyzed works capture and convey the complex experience of the generation of young people growing up in the era after the civil rights movement through creative experiments they carefully consider what it means to be narrowed within the scope of a sociological problem all while trying to expand the perspective of creative liberation in short they explore what it means to be deemed an at risk youth this book looks at crucial works beginning in 1968 ranging from sapphire's push and the kid walter dean myers's monster and dael orlandersmith's the gimmick to bill gunn's johnnas each text offers unique representations of black gifted children whose creative processes help them to navigate simultaneous hypervisibility and invisibility as racialized subjects the book addresses the ways that adolescents experience the perilous at risk label which threatens to narrow adolescent existence at a developmental moment that requires an orientation toward possibility and a freedom to experiment ultimately at risk considers the distinct possibilities and challenges of the post civil rights era and how the period allows for a more honest multilayered and forthright depiction of black youth subjectivity against the adultification that forecloses potential writing the survivor the rape novel in late twentieth century american fiction identifies a new genre of american fiction the rape novel that recenters narratives of sexual violence on the survivors of violence and abuse rather than the perpetrators the rape novel arose during the women's liberation movement as women writers collectively challenged the traditional erasure of female subjectivity and agency found in earlier representations of sexual violence in american fiction the rape novel not only foregrounds survivors and their stories in a textual centering that affirms their dignity and self worth but also develops new narratological strategies for portraying violent disturbing subject matter in bringing together many key women's texts of the last decades of the 20th century the rape novel demonstrates the centrality of sexual assault to women's fiction of this era the rape novels of the 21st century continue the political activism inherent in the genre educating readers offering community to survivors and encouraging social activism as the stories of male survivors are increasingly told a radical reconsideration of late twentieth century american novels writing the survivor underscores the importance of women's activism upon the novel's form and content and reveals the portrayal of rape as rape to be an interethnic imperative
