emotionally charged and erotic this widely translated novel from the bestselling author of The Last Chinese Chef and A Cup of Light has been universally praised for its authoritative portrayal of a China rarely captured in contemporary fiction. At dawn in Beijing, Alice Mannegan pedals a bicycle through the deserted streets. An American by birth, she spends her nights in Beijing's smoke-filled bars and the Chinese men she so desires never misunderstand her intentions. It is a world in which each night as she slips from her hotel she hopes to lose herself forever. Then Alice takes a phone call from an American archaeologist seeking a translator and begins an intoxicating journey of the heart, one that draws her into a perilous search for archaeological treasure, plunges her into the vast uncharted terrain of Northwest China, and brings a man named Lin Shiyang into her life. As their expedition twists perilously through the violent history of China, as Alice and Lin slowly seek shelter in each other, an extraordinary series of events begins to unfold. In this haunting, utterly unforgettable novel, Lost in Translation is a rich exploration of love in all its forms: human, sexual, divine, between a nation and its history, a man and his past, a father and his daughter.

Sailing to Shanghai in 1936 to lead a black jazz orchestra, Thomas Greene goes from being flat broke in segregated Baltimore to living in a mansion with servants of his own and from the classical piano pieces he was trained to play to the toe-tapping swing of the big band era. Song Yuhua is refined, educated, and bonded since age eighteen to Shanghai's most powerful crime boss in payment for her father's gambling debts. Outwardly submissive, she burns with rage, longs for escape, and risks her life spying on her master for the Communist Party. With Shanghai shattered by the Japanese invasion, Thomas and Song find their way to each other and forge a bond from which neither can back down. In the turbulent years that follow, torn between music and survival, freedom and commitment, love and war, they navigate the dangers leading to World War II until the moment when they must cast their lots in Shanghai's final impossible choice. Nicole Mones, author of the bestselling Last Chinese Chef, masterfully weaves in real-life historical figures and events in this beautifully written and emotionally
