it is nearly two centuries since the first quarto of hamlet was rediscovered yet there is still no consensus about its relationship to the second quarto indeed the first quarto the least frequently read hamlet has been dismissed as corrupt inferior or like a mutilated corpse even though in performance it has been described as the absolute dynamo behind the play currently one hypothesis dominates explanations about the quartos interrelationship supposing that the first quarto published 1603 was reconstructed from memory by one or more actors who had performed minor roles in a version of the second quarto published 1604 5 the present study reports on a detailed linguistic reassessment of the principal arguments for memorial reconstruction the evidence including a three way comparison between the underlying french source in les histoires tragiques and the two quartos and the informal features and specific grammatical aspects and a documented memorial reconstruction in 1779 does not support the dominant hypothesis the cumulative evidence suggests that the earliest scholars to examine the first quarto were right the 1603 hamlet came first and the second quarto is a substantial later revision the present volume is based on a conference held in october 2019 at the faculty of theology of humboldt university berlin as part of a common project of the australian catholic university the katholieke universiteit leuven and the humboldt university berlin the aim is to discuss the relationships of jews and christians in the first two centuries ce against the background of recent debates which have called into question the image of parting ways for a description of the relationships of judaism and christianity in antiquity one objection raised against this metaphor is that it accentuates differences at the expense of commonalities another critique is that this image looks from a later perspective at historical developments which can hardly be grasped with such a metaphor it is more likely that distinctions between jews christians jewish christians christian jews etc are more blurred than the image of parting ways allows in light of these considerations the contributions in this volume discuss the cogency of the parting of the ways model with a look at prominent early christian writers and places and suggest more appropriate metaphors to describe the relationships of jews and christians in the early period
