cities continue to be key sites for the production and contestation of inequalities generated by an ongoing but troubled neoliberal project neoliberalism's onslaught across the globe now shapes diverse inequalities poverty segregation racism social exclusion homelessness as city inhabitants feel the brunt of privatization state re organization and punishing social policy this book examines the relationship between persistent neoliberalism and the production and contestation of inequalities in cities across the world case studies of current city realities reveal a richly place specific and generalizable neoliberal condition that further deepens the economic social and political relations that give rise to diverse inequalities diverse cases also show how people struggle against a neoliberal ethos and hence the open endedness of futures in these cities given the central role that agriculture plays in the rural economy of africa several countries have implemented supply and demand driven policies and programs to promote sustainable fertilizer use with mixed results however not much has been said about the market structure or competitive behavior along the supply chain in the highly concentrated fertilizer industry nor about how this affects fertilizer uptake in the region globally the industry has only a few producers and african countries are highly and increasingly dependent on imported fertilizer locally fertilizer distribution channels are also characterized by a limited number of market actors often with a poor dealer network
