there are several historical accounts of the treaty 7 agreement between the government and prairie first nations but none from the perspective of the aboriginal people involved in spite of their perceived silence however the elders of each nation involved have maintained an oral history of events passing on from generation to generation many stories about the circumstances surrounding treaty 7 and the subsequent administration of the agreement the true spirit and original intent of treaty 7 gathers the collective memory of the elders about treaty 7 to provide unique insights into a crucial historical event and the complex ways of the aboriginal people the true spirit and original intent of treaty 7 is based on the testimony of over 80 elders from the five first nations involved in treaty 7 the bloods peigans siksika stoney and tsuu t ina their recollections highlight the grave misconceptions and misrepresentations between the two sides due in part to inadequate interpretation and or deliberate attempts to mislead the elders consistently report that the treaty as they understood it was a peace treaty not a surrender of land and that they had agreed to share the land with the white newcomers in exchange for resources to establish new economies education medical assistance and annuity payments the book provides both a historical overview of treaty 7 and an analysis of the literature on treaties generally and treaty 7 specifically it makes clear that different agendas different languages and different world views affected each side s interpretation of events this review of the events and interpretations surrounding treaty 7 takes place at a time when aboriginal and indigenous peoples all over the world are re evaluating their relationships with imperial powers it was undertaken in good faith in hopes that it will begin a dialogue that can alter the dominant discourse of euro canadian society which has been so damaging to aboriginal people report of the dominion fishery commission on the fisheries of the province of ontario 1893 issued as vol 26 no 7 supplement the objective of this thesis is to examine the archival documents that may be considered by the supreme court of canada if the treaty 7 nations were to challenge the federal government on the treaty s content and meaning the impetus for this thesis is two fold firstly recent decisions by the supreme court of canada in relation to aboriginal historical treaties have demonstrated a shift towards legally recognizing the sovereignty of first nations as more first nations challenge the federal government on their fulfillment of treaty obligations supreme court decisions will become more elaborate and exhaustive providing many nations with an opportunity to address treaty concerns in a more substantive manner than in the past secondly the blackfoot are my neighbours and i am very honoured to relay part of their story in the late 1930s a number of american women especially those allied with various peace and isolationist groups protested against the nation s entry into world war ii while their story is fairly well known margaret paton walsh reveals a far less familiar story of women who fervently felt that american intervention was absolutely necessary paton walsh recounts how the united states became involved in the war but does so through the eyes of american women who faced it as a necessary evil covering the period between 1935 and 1941 she examines how these women functioned as political actors even though they were excluded from positions of power through activism in women s organizations informal women s networks and even male dominated lobbying groups in the great debate over whether america should enter the war some women favored aid to the allies not because they hoped for war but because they hoped aid would forestall more direct u s involvement but also because they believed war was preferable to a nazi victory paton walsh shows that this activism involved some of the most prominent women of their day elizabeth cutter morrow whose son in law charles lindbergh was an isolationist spokesman supported the revision of the neutrality acts to allow the sale of arms to the allies and expressed her support in a national radio broadcast soon other women joined this debate esther brunauer of the aaup journalist dorothy thompson and organizations like the league of women voters and national women s trade union league broke from the pacifist tradition to advocate american aid for the allied cause focusing on the conflict in europe paton walsh shows how these women grasped the implications of the lend lease program for america s entry into the war but supported it nevertheless by late 1941 the women s division of the fight for freedom committee had been established no longer merely advocating aid to britain to keep american boys out of battle this organization supported direct american involvement in the war as a means of stopping nazi oppression while most historians have focused on women s pacifism paton walsh connects women more directly to world events and shows how those interventionists reformulated maternalist ideas to justify and explain their beliefs our war too is a story of american women trying to reconcile the irreconcilable to preserve both their principles and their peace it expands our understanding of women as political actors and thinkers about foreign policy as it sheds new light on american public opinion over the build up to the war
