recent research in the area of suicidology has provided significant new insights in the epidemiological psychopathological and biological characteristics of suicidal behaviour the international handbook of suicide and attempted suicide is the first book to bring together this expertise and translate it into practical guidelines for those responsible for policy issues and for those involved in the treatment and prevention of suicidal behaviour leading international authorities provide a truly comprehensive and research based reference to understanding treating and preventing suicidal behaviour they explore concepts and theories which best guide work within this field and detail key research which has supported conceptual developments preventive interventions and clinical treatment no self respecting worker in deliberate self harm and suicide prevention either clinical or research can afford to be without access to this comprehensive handbook possession and regular use may well become a marker of serious involvement in the subject this is the most comprehensive up to date informative and well written source of information on suicide and suicidal behaviour an invaluable work of reference which will be essential for clinicians and researchers for many years to come andrew sims emeritus professor of psychiatry st james s university hospital leeds uk british journal of psychiatry suicide and the middle ages sounds like a contradiction was life not too short anyway and the church too disapproving to admit suicide and how is the historian supposed to find out alexander murray takes the last question first as a key to the testing of all other assumptions examining a wide range of documents he shows that there were indeed suicides of types and configurations astonishingly modern if not in numbers per capita as for reactions they were of two kinds one was to heap suicide with every imaginable curse natural and supernatural and the author s search for their religious anthropological and legal background leads far outside medieval christendom however he also uncovers a less negative reaction as from the eleventh century onwards medicine psychology poetry and the pastoral priesthood charted ever more assiduously the terra incognita of suicidal emotion for anyone trying to understand how and why suicide happens here is a provocative exploration of the subject colt interviewed hundreds of people who have had intimate encounters with suicide to unveil the mysteries that surround this tragic phenomenon
