for many it was more than a publication it was a way of life the whole earth catalog billed itself as access to tools and it grew from a bay area blip to a national phenomenon catering to hippies do it yourselfers and anyone interested in self sufficiency independent of mainstream america now known as living off the grid in recovering the history of the catalog s unique brand of environmentalism historian kirk recounts how stewart brand and the point foundation promoted a philosophy of pragmatic environmentalism that celebrated technological achievement human ingenuity and sustainable living kirk shows us that whole earth was more than a mere counterculture fad at a time when many of these ideas were seen as heretical to a predominantly wilderness based movement it became a critical forum for environmental alternatives and a model for how complicated ecological ideas could be presented in a hopeful and even humorous way from publisher description the socialist register has consistently focused on the processes driving globalization as well as its costs from our much cited 1994 volume between globalism and nationalism to our 1999 volume global capitalism versus democracy in the present volume we have sought to take this a step further the task of resubordinating the market forces that now control the world depends not only on understanding them but on understanding them in their contradictoriness seeing how they depend on structural relationships that produce problems and vulnerabilities incoherence and conflict the energy and commitment that brought so many tens of thousands of people to seattle and quebec city not to mention the thousands of movements evolving in every city and many rural areas of the world from soweto to chiapas need to be backed by careful analysis of the way that capitalism s contradictions are now manifested on a global terrain this task is the primary focus of the 38th annual volume of the register now in your hands our concept of contradiction has not been mechanical or theological we were not looking for primary contradictions let alone the primary contradiction still less do we mean to suggest that there are contradictions that will bring down capitalism of their own accord on the other hand we have been concerned with systemic contradictions as opposed to just tensions conflicts mere paradoxes ironies and the like i e our focus is on structural relations inherent in capitalism which at the same time constitute or give rise to obstacles to its smooth or even continued expansion and which offer opportunities for effective socialist practice
