volume 1 discusses dogmatics the trinity the identity of god creation sin and christology world leading anthropologists and philosophers pursue the perplexing question fundamental to both disciplines what is it to think of ourselves as human a common theme is the open ended and context dependent nature of our notion of the human one upshot of which is that perplexities over that notion can only be dealt with in a piecemeal fashion and in relation to concrete real life circumstances philosophical anthropology understood as the exploration of such perplexities will thus be both recognizably philosophical in character and inextricably bound up with anthropological fieldwork the volume is put together accordingly precisely by mixing ostensibly philosophical papers with papers that engage in close anthropological study of concrete issues it is meant to reflect the vital tie between these two aspects of the overall philosophical anthropological enterprise the collection will be of great interest to philosophers and anthropologists alike and essential reading for anyone interested in the interconnections between the two disciplines in this book among other sources we have compiled key thoughts and material that were dictated to alice bailey starting in the 1920s and continuing through the 1960s from the tibetan master djwhal khul as you see in the references she wrote eighteen books which were published by lucis publishing company new york djwhal khul shared this material from another dimension giving us a new perspective we highly recommend these books because djwhal khul is in a higher vibrational dimension working and aiding us in an enlightened evolution what we have added to this book is some of our thoughts about the energies to which khul refers we know very little about these energies and this material presents a challenge to us in our evolutionary sojourn each of us must pursue our understanding and knowledge about these energies this is our goal and our reason for writing this book good travels to you this book gathers a set of reflections on the gift of beauty and the passion of being there is something surprising about beauty that we receive and that moves the passion of being in us the book takes issue with an ambiguous attitude to beauty among some who proclaim their advanced aesthetic authenticity beauty seems bland and lacks the more visceral thrill of the ugly indeed the excremental we crave what disrupts and provokes us not what gives delight or even consoles by contrast attention is given to how beauty arouses enigmatic joy in us and we enjoy an elemental rapport with it as other surprised by beauty our breath is taken away but we are more truly there with the beautiful when we are taken outside of ourselves we are first receivers of the gift of surprise and only then perceivers and conceivers my attention to the passion of being stresses a patience a receptivity to what is other what happens is not first our construction there is something given something awakening something delighting something energizing something of invitation to transcendence the theme is amplified in diverse reflections on life and its transient beauty on soul music and its relation to self on the shine on things given in creation on beauty and schopenhauer s dark origin on creativity and the dynamis in paul weiss s creative ventures on redemption in romanticism in the thought of stanley cavell on theater as a between or metaxu on redeeming laughter and its connection with the passion of being learning theories for teachers provides a comprehensive yet manageable overview of current major educational psychological theories and issues and analyzes the implications for the teaching process adopting the idea that there are no final answers to questions concerning school learning this book encourages teachers to develop their own learning theories and test them in terms of classroom reactions structure and the adequacy of supporting evidence the sixth edition features a new chapter on computer education and use of the internet as a source of data
