the world faces more than 60 million people displaced by armed conflict and disasters as of 2022 climate change is set to trigger large scale displacement in the future internal displacement and the law discusses to what extent the present law can contribute to preventing responding to and resolving internal displacement and protecting the rights of these internally displaced persons idps it also identifies its weaknesses and examines ways to improve action the book s analysis reflects the realities of internal displacement and the challenges faced by displaced individuals and communities their hosts governments and international actors assessing the un guiding principles on internal displacement and the kampala convention on the protection and assistance of internally displaced persons in africa this enlightening volume investigates the relevance of international human rights and humanitarian law to the problem of displacement with an eye toward durable solutions in line with its human rights approach this work promotes a narrative that based on the concept of sovereignty as responsibility emphasizes the primary responsibility of states to address the needs of idps and views them as citizens with rights and agency rather than as vulnerable beneficiaries of humanitarian action the author concludes that the body of relevant law amounts to an emerging legal regime on internal displacement whose substantive norms are largely adequate but which faces specific institutional challenges at domestic and international levels that weaken efforts to address the plight of idps this book explores the increasing concern over the extent to which those suffering from forced cross border displacement as a result of environmental change are protected under international human rights law formally they are not entitled to admission or stay in a third state country a situation that has been identified as an international legal protection gap the book seeks to provide answers to two basic questions whether and to what extent existing international law protects cross border environmental displacement and whether and how existing formalized regional complementary protection standards can interpretively solidify and conceptualize protection for cross border environmental displacement the discussion outlines that the protection of the human person is not only an ex post facto obligation of states but must be increasingly seen as an ex ante one the analysis further suggests that the european union regionally orientated protection regime can help states to consolidate an evolving protection paradigm of proactive and reactive measures being erected at the international level it can also narrow the identified legal protection gaps in so doing it helps states to reconceptualise protection as a holistic and dynamic enterprise this book will be of great interest to academics in law political science and human rights policy makers and civil society organisations both at national and international level as of the end of 2015 there were 40 8 civilians who had been internally displaced by conflicts and effects of natural disasters in various parts of the world internally displaced persons idps are currently the largest group of persons receiving assistance from some of the main international humanitarian organisations with the largest concentration of internally displaced persons idps the african continent has been the worst affected region while previously idps have largely been neglected under international law the first ever continental binding treaty on internal displacement the african union convention on the protection of and assistance to internally displaced persons the kampala convention entered into force on 6 december 2012 as of january 2016 25 states have ratified the instrument while 40 states have become signatories this book significantly contributes to the study policy making and practice on managing internal displacement by presenting the first major systematic examination of the evolution elements and implementation of the kampala convention it explores the responsibility of the state for the protection of idps particularly those who are most vulnerable during armed conflicts internal strife natural disasters human rights violations and other circumstances the status of ratification of the convention is reviewed as well as the steps currently being undertaken by governments to implement the convention it also analyses the contribution by human rights mechanisms inter governmental bodies and un peace keeping missions in the implementation of the convention the book casts the kampala convention in broader institutional and normative developments in africa and beyond it demonstrates how concepts such as responsibility to protect and sovereignty as responsibility have begun to make inroads influencing some of the more progressive instruments adopted by the african union it also sheds light on the relationship between the convention and some regional instruments in assessing the effectiveness of the kampala convention allehone abebe argues that the link between the convention and initiatives on development human rights and governance in africa should be fully fostered the idea of home in law displacement and dispossession explores an important set of legal and policy issues surrounding the concepts of home and homelessness taking a growing area of legal scholarship into the new arena of human rights and international law the collection considers the ideas concerning home both in the sense of the dwelling place as a special type of property and territorial claims to homeland which underpin many contemporary legal problems by examining a range of contexts where people are displaced or dispossessed from their homes the essays focusing on dispossession consider themes ranging from mortgage and rent arrears in the uk to responses to the foreclosure crisis in the usa and from eviction for the purposes of economic development in south africa to the exclusion of asylum seekers from the uk s social housing and welfare provision and within the framework of the european convention on human rights the displacement theme meanwhile examines transnational home issues from the experiences of exiles and refugees in areas of conflict to the impact of the broader context of economic social and cultural rights on attempts to protect housing and home through international law at the heart of each essay the contributors experts from across the fields of law policy and housing rights examine the circumstances in which displacement and dispossession take place and reconsider how law and policy respond to such circumstances with a particular focus on the impact of loss of home for the human person at a time of particular and increasing concern about security of tenure and the role of law and policy in protecting people who are vulnerable to forced eviction the idea of home in law presents a bold opportunity to raise questions about the rights and norms associated with housing and home and to generate new insights for scholarship and for national and international policy debates concerning displacement and dispossession this book provides detailed discussion of all the relevant national and international instruments that may be invoked in cases of forced displacement it s in depth survey includes relevant laws and policies from all fifteen of the countries that emerged from the ussr as well as conventions dealing with migrants and refugees concluded by such organizations as the council of europe the osce the ilo the european union and the commonwealth of independent states cis the work of non governmental organizations in the field is also taken into account published under the transnational publishers imprint a comprehensive approach to the problem of forced displacement involves understanding and addressing human rights issues in a multiplicity of forms this collection aims to contribute to the institutional capacities of the many different players to operationalise the human rights of refugees and the internally displaced by conceptualising the emerging issues and priorities and advancing policy thinking on human rights and forced displacement each of the sections of the book approaches this issue from a different perspective the section on standards asks what international human rights standards apply to the forcibly displaced how do they apply have there been failures are there gaps in the international standards are there conflicts the section on monitoring reporting asks who monitors human rights violations who reports the findings and to whom what are the respective responsibilities of the different actors the section on solutions asks where solutions lie environmental planning and development international prosecution of war criminals rebuilding legal infrastructures and national institutions enhancing the role of human rights ngos to monitor report and frame forced displacement in human rights terms for increased public understanding and interest the final section looks to the future and considers where asylum fits into the spectrum of solving the nature of forced displacement today the capacities and limitations of international criminal tribunals and the co operative arrangements and practical divisions of labour that need to be fashioned between international agencies and service relief providers every year millions of people worldwide are forced to leave their homes and become displaced due to a variety of causes this book explores the role of international human rights law in protecting people against involuntary displacement it does so with reference to the idea of a human right not to be displaced includes statistical tables and graphs
