cognitive neuroscience once a specialized area of psychology and biology has enjoyed increased worldwide legitimacy in the last thirty years not only in psychiatry and mental health but also in fields as diverse as education economics marketing and law how can this surge in popularity be explained has the new science of human behaviour now become the barometer of our conduct and our lives taking the place previously occupied by psychoanalysis rather than asking if neuronal man will replace social man or how to surmount the opposition between the biological and the social the mechanics of passions uncovers hidden relationships between global social ideals and specialized concepts of neuroscience and cognitive science proposing a historical sociology situated in the dual contexts of the history of sciences and the history of self representation alain ehrenberg describes the conditions through which cognitive neuroscience has developed and acquired a strong moral authority in our individualistic society permeated by ideas values and norms of autonomy cognitive neuroscience offers the promise of turning personal limitations into assets by exploring an individual's hidden potential the mechanics of passions identifies this as the echo of social ideals of autonomy affirming that the moral authority of cognitive neuroscience stems as much from cultural norms as from any results of scientific or medical experimentation

this book situates the work of the soviet psychologist and neurologist alexander luria 1902 1977 in its historical context and explores the romantic approach to scientific writing developed in his case histories luria consistently asserted that human consciousness was formed by cultural and historical experience he described psychology as the science of social history and his ideas about subjectivity cognition and mental health have a history of their own lines of mutual influence existed between luria and his colleagues on the other side of the iron curtain but psychologies in revolution also discusses luria s research in relation to soviet history from the october revolution of 1917 through the collectivisation of agriculture and stalinist purges of the 1930s to the second world war and finally the relative stability of the brezhnev era foregrounding the often marginalised people with whom luria s clinical work brought him into contact by historicising science and by focusing on a theoretical approach which itself emphasised the centrality of social and political factors for understanding human subjectivity the book also seeks to contribute to current debates in the medical humanities health humanities in contemporary times has enabled exploration of the unexplored chartered terrains in literary paradigms scholars in the field of humanities and sciences have been engaging with the praxis of applying concepts from both disciplines revising the approach towards health care and humanities due to interdisciplinary and multidisciplinary methodologies of reading literary texts they have been reinforcing a paradigm shift from the conventional understanding of narratives in literature and health care traditional discursive boundaries between the disciplines of health and humanities are collapsing due to a comprehensive and nuanced interpretation of the shared ontological foundation between the two humanism terminologies like displacement dislocation and disjunction unite health and humanities and they also make the unknown known health humanities explores the different multitudes of narration in the literary arena and it represents diverse voices of literature it also showcases the importance of re reading a text owing to its autotelic status the authors who have contributed chapters for this book have meticulously selected diverse texts and contexts embedded in the dynamism of health humanities this book is an impetus for academicians from the field of humanities and sciences who desire to venture into new epistemes towards health humanities
