for a long period any art or cultural feature alien to the hellenic or roman world was held in contempt and the epithet barbarian thus acquired a pejorative meaning the first reactions against this view appeared in the nineteenth century when scholars began to acknowledge the existence of ancient civilizations which had had no writing the present study shows the way of life of those europeans living in the metal ages describing their social and religious customs and setting out to understand through the material objects they have left us the way their minds worked and their beliefs evolved professor briard describes the most typical groups delineating in particular scenes of everyday life using the results gleaned from the most striking excavations and extant monuments jacket this text attempts to account for the destruction of key cities in the mediterranean at the end of the bronze age circa the 12th century bc the author proposes a military explanation for the destruction of four important kingdoms at this time this book addresses the controversy over the origins of the bronze age of southeast asia charles higham provides a systematic and regional presentation of the current evidence he suggests that the adoption of metallurgy in the region followed a period of growing exchange with china higham then traces the development of bronze age cultures identifying regionality and innovation and suggesting how and why distinct cultures developed this book is the first comprehensive study of the period placed within a broader comparative framework his majesty being powerful his heart stout none could stand before him all his territory was ablaze with fire and he burned every foriegn country with his hot breath egyptian pharaoh ramesses ii the bowmen of his majesty spent six hours of destruction among them they were delivered to the sword egyptian pharaoh merneptah may my father know the enemy ships came my cities were burned and evil things were done in my country king of the city of ugarit to the king of cyprus since there is famine in your house we will starve to death the living soul of your country you will see no longer to a hittite offical stationed in ugarit israel is laid waste his seed is not pharaoh merneptah pharaoh s chariots and his army he cast into the sea book of exodus egypt was adrift and every man was thrown out of his right there was no leader for years pharaoh ramesses iv as they the sea peoples were coming forward toward egypt their hearts relying upon their hands a net was prepared for them my strong arm has overthrown those who came to exalt themselves pharaoh ramesses iii of the greeks these were destroyed by their own hands and passed to the dank house of chill hades greek writer hesiod returning to luxor egypt by nile ship the author has visited many of the significant archaeological sites the importance of cultural contacts in the east mediterranean has long been recognized and is the focus of ongoing international research fieldwork in the aegean egypt cyprus and the levant continues to add to our understanding of the nature of this contact and its social and economic significance particularly to the cultures of the aegean despite sophisticated discussion of the archaeological evidence in particular on the part of aegean and mediterranean archaeologists there has been little systematic attempt to incorporate anthropological perspectives on materiality and exchange into archaeological narratives of this material this book addresses that gap and integrates anthropological discourse on contact examining exchange systems the gift notions of geographical distance and power colonization and hybridization furthermore it develops a social narrative of culture contact in the mediterranean context illustrating the reasons communities chose to engage in international exchange and how this impacted the construction of identities throughout the region while traditional archaeologies in the east mediterranean have tended to be reductive in their approach to material culture and how it was produced used and exchanged this book reviews current research on material culture focusing on issues such as the biography of objects inalienable possessions and hybridization exploring how these issues can further illuminate the material world of the communities of the bronze age mediterranean what was life on earth like two million years ago a thousand years ago the years in between when did people start wearing clothes when did farming begin and how did that change things this series takes you back to the time of the earliest humans the dinosaurs were long gone but the world was still strange and wild back cover this book provides an account of the development of european culture and society during the bronze age the time span between c 2000 and 700 bc it was a period of remarkable innovation seen for instance in the development and growth of metallurgy as a major industry the spread of trading contacts the origins of urbanism and the beginnings of social stratification the study is divided chronologically into two the earlier and later bronze age giving a clear picture of the nature of the radical changes which occurred in the period as a whole the geographical area covered from the atlantic shores across europe into the soviet union and from northern scandinavia to the mediterranean is too vast to be taken as one unit and has been broken down into five regions each is discussed in terms of settlement form burial practices ritual and religious sites material culture economic and social background and trading patterns the book describes and develops common themes that link together the different areas and cultural groups rather than taking the typographical approach often adopted by bronze age specialists and uses the results of radiocarbon dating to establish an objective chronology for the period the text is generously illustrated and fully documented with radiocarbon dating tables and extensive bibliography our understanding of bronze age europe is still increasing but no other book of this scope had been written before this in 1979 it is a major study of its time of interest to anyone looking beyond popular accounts of the day pictures from the bronze age are numerous vivid and complex there is no other prehistoric period that has produced such a wide range of images spanning from rock art to figurines to decoration on bronzes and gold fourteen papers with a geographical coverage from scandinavia to the iberian peninsula examine a wide range of topics reflecting the many forms and expressions of bronze age imagery encompassing important themes including religion materiality mobility interaction power and gender contributors explore specific elements of rock art in some detail such as the representation of the human form images of manslaughter and gender identities the relationship between rock art imagery and its location on the one hand and metalwork and networks of trade and exchange of both materials and ideas on the other are considered modern and ancient perceptions of rock art are discussed in particular the changing perceptions that have developed during almost 150 years of documented research picturing the bronze age is based on an international workshop with the same title held in tanum sweden in october 2012
