animal narratology interrogates what it means to narrate to speak speak for on behalf of and to voice or represent life beyond the human which is in itself as different as insects bears and dogs are from each other and yet more as individual as a single mouse horse or puma the varied contributions to this interdisciplinary special issue highlight assumptions about the human perception of attitude toward and responsibility for the animals that are read and written about thus demonstrating that just as the animal does not exist neither does the human in their zoopoetic focus the analyses are aware that animal narratology ultimately always contains an approximation of an animal perspective in human terms and terminology yet they make clear that what matters is how the animal is approximated and that there is an effort to approach and encounter the non human in the first place many of the analyses come to the conclusion that literary animals give readers the opportunity to expand their own points of view both on themselves and others by adopting another's perspective to the degree that such an endeavor is possible ultimately the contributions call for a recognition of the many spaces moments and modes in which human lives are entangled with those of animals one of which is located within the creative bounds of storytelling this book begins with the assumption that the presence of non human creatures causes an always already uncanny rift in human assumptions about reality exploring the dark side of animal nature and the otherness of animals as viewed by humans and employing cutting edge theory on non human animals eco criticism literary and cultural theory this book takes the gothic genre into new territory after the dissemination of darwin's theories of evolution nineteenth century fiction quickly picked up on the idea of the animal within here the fear explored was of an unruly defiant degenerate and entirely amoral animality lying mostly dormant within all of us however non humans and humans have other sorts of encounters too and even before darwin humans have often had an uneasy relationship with animals which as donna haraway puts it have a way of looking back at us in this book the focus is not on the animal within but rather on the animal without other and entirely incomprehensible there is a long history of radical children's film and television which subverts political orthodoxies and challenges aesthetic conventions often beneath a cloak of innocence however these rich traditions of radical screen content for children have received remarkably little attention this volume redresses the balance with contributions from leading authorities in the field and reference to both iconic and neglected media from around the world this book sheds light on film and television for children that seeks to make a critical intervention in culture and society it also investigates the subversive uses of children's media culture by individuals communities of fandom political groups and creative practitioners in so doing it represents a major addition to existing scholarship in the field of children's film and television this volume takes ending the oppression of other animals seriously and confronts the question what would happen to all the animals by showcasing real promissory and imagined counter sites or heterotopia where animals happen in different ways free of anthropocentric orders of value and purpose rejecting persistent understandings of the oppression of nonhuman animals across the entire breadth of the animal industrial complex a ic as either non-existent unproblematic and/or fundamentally unalterable open to merely being reduced in scale or made less harmful the collection offers readers a variety of pathways towards radically disordered ways of thinking about and relating to other animals over 14 chapters authors describe more liberatory relational reconfigurations playing out in the present and undertake conceptual imaginative and embodied explorations of liberatory futures the chapters are united by a common commitment to heterotopic disturbance to contesting and subverting the anthropo-capitalo-centric space in which we live each chapter approaches this subversion in its own way using prefiguration restorying speculation radical imagination and combinations thereof to disturb or shatter orders explore the kinds of liberation and resistance their disturbance demonstrates demands or embodies and ultimately illustrate exactly what would or could happen to all the animals heterotopia radical imagination and shattering orders will appeal to scholars students and individuals interested not only in challenging normalised binaries hierarchies and orders of value both human and nonhuman but in creating and realising liberatory alternatives scholar activists activists professionals working in animal advocacy and anyone undertaking activities aimed at radically changing how other animals are understood and used will also find inspiration new insights and information that enhance their current methods and approaches some readers may also find simply confirmation and comfort in the knowledge that so many others are working in solidarity with the disordered belief that shattering the a ic is possible this book examines animal welfare themes in fiction and considers how authors of the last two centuries undermine dominative attitudes toward the nonhuman appearing alongside the emerging humane movements of the nineteenth century and beyond is a kind of storytelling sympathetic to protectionist efforts well described as a literature of protest compassion inclined tales like the dolittle adventures by hugh lofting educate readers on a wide range of ethical questions empathize with the vulnerable and envision peaceful coexistence with other species memorable characters like black beauty and beautiful joe ivan the gorilla and louis the trumpeter swan hazel and cheeta mr bultitude and doctor rat do not merely amuse they are voices from the margins who speaking with moral urgency to those with ears to hear this broad survey of ethical themes in animal fiction highlights the unique contributions creative writers make toward animal welfare efforts
