graham webster gives background on britain before the invasion and goes on to describe the roman forces the personalities involved the actual invasion and claudius triumphal entrance into camulodunum the british capital this book provides an authoritative new narrative of the roman conquest of britain from the two campaigns of julius caesar up until the construction of hadrian s wall it highlights the motivations of roman commanders and british resistance fighters during a key period of britain s history this book examines the roman conquest of britain it is suitable for pupils at national curriculum key stage 2 the roman conquest of britain in ad 43 was one of the most important turning points in the history of the british isles it left a legacy still discernible today in the form of archaeological remain road networks land divisions and even language in his much acclaimed trilogy now up dated and revised dr webster builds up a fascinating and lively picture of britain in the first century ad and discussed in detail the various types of evidence and the theories based upon it caratacus last stand against the romans has a central place in the folklore of the welsh marches where many a hill is claimed to be the site of the famous battle but as graham webster shows this epic encounter was not only real history but also part of an intricate ten year series of campaigns conducted after the initial conquest of Britain by interpreting the ancient historical accounts and piecing together the masses of archaeological evidence Dr Webster has brilliantly reconstructed this central period of the Claudian conquest of Britain and its immediate aftermath includes pictures includes ancient accounts of Britain includes online resources and a bibliography for further reading the Romans thinking that it might be some help to the allies Britons whom they were forced to abandon constructed a strong stone wall from sea to sea in a straight line between the towns that had been there built for fear of the enemy where Severus also had formerly built a rampart Bede's description of Hadrian's Wall in the Middle Ages the famous conqueror from the European continent came ashore with thousands of men ready to set up a new kingdom in England the Britons had resisted the amphibious invasion from the moment his forces landed but he was able to push forward in a large winter battle the Britons' large army attacked the invaders but was eventually routed and the conqueror was able to set up a new kingdom over 1100 years before William the Conqueror became the king of England after the Battle of Hastings Julius Caesar came, saw and conquered part of Britannia setting up a Roman province with a puppet king in 54 BCE in the new province the Romans eventually constructed a military outpost overlooking a bridge across the River Thames the new outpost was named Londinium and it covered just over two dozen acres for most of the past 1000 years London has been the most dominant city in the world ruling over so much land that it was said the sun never set on the British Empire with the possible exception of Rome no city has ever been more important or influential than London in human history thus it was only fitting that it was the Romans who established London as a prominent city Londinium was initially little more than a small military outpost near the northern boundary of the Roman province of Britannia but its access to the River Thames and the North Sea made it a valuable location for a port during the middle of the 1st century CE the Romans conducted another invasion of the British Isles after which Londinium began to grow rapidly as the Romans stationed legions there to defend against the Britons Londinium became a thriving international port allowing trade with Rome and other cities across the empire by the 2nd century CE Londinium was a large Roman city with tens of thousands of inhabitants using villas palaces a forum temples and baths the Roman governor ruled from the city in a basilica that served as the seat of government what was once a 30-acre outpost now spanned 300 acres and was home to nearly 15,000 people including Roman soldiers officials and foreign merchants the Romans also built heavy defenses for the city constructing several forts and the massive London Wall parts of which are still scattered across the city today ancient Roman remains continue to dot London's landscape today reminding everyone that almost a millennium before it became the home of royalty London was already a center of power the Romans were master builders and much of what they built has stood the test of time throughout their vast empire they have left grand structures from the Forum and Pantheon in Rome to the theatres and hippodromes of North Africa and the triumphal gates in Anatolia and France wherever they went the Romans built imposing structures to show their power and ability and one of their most impressive constructions was built on the northernmost fringe of the empire shortly after the Emperor Hadrian came to power in the early 2nd century CE he decided to seal off Scotland from Roman Britain with an ambitious wall stretching from sea to sea to accomplish this the wall had to be built from the mouth of the River Tyne where Newcastle stands today 80 Roman miles 76 miles or 122 kilometers west to Bowness on Solway the sheer scale of the job still impresses people today and Hadrian's Wall has the advantage of being systematically studied and partially restored the story of the Claudian conquest of Britain was only partly recorded by ancient historians Tacitus' Annals breaks off at the death of Tiberius while the narrative of Cassius Dio survives only as a collection of elected pieces much of the missing knowledge has been recaptured by archaeological research as a result we have a better understanding of the tribal society which then existed in Britain and this can help us to appreciate the courses of military action open to Plautius the commanding Roman general Peddie argues that organization and supply problems of the Roman task force dictated Roman tactics he discusses what these may have been examines the reasons for a seemingly isolated foray into the West Country and suggests that the guerrilla campaign of AD 43-52 denied the Romans their hope of a speedy conquest excerpt from a new history of great britain green like every one else who tries to compress the story of england into one volume had to take a selective view for instance he emphasized in some centuries literary history in others social there are many gaps in his narrative due to the imperative need of compression and to these gaps we owe his singularly full treatment of other parts of our history the short history was not a complete statement it was not meant to be such but it is the account of what struck a man who possessed both knowledge and genius as being the most important aspects of english history about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books find more at forgottenbooks.com this book is a reproduction of an important historical work forgotten books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy in rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition we do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
