transgressing women focuses on the literary and cinematic representation of female characters in contemporary noir thrillers the book argues that as the genre has grown expanded and been subverted since its initial conception along with the changing definition of gender the representation of a female character has also inevitably gone through some dramatic changes so the book asks some important questions what links the female characters in canonical noir to their contemporary counterparts is gender division still relevant in a text that transgresses gender boundaries what happens when it is the human body itself that betrays the traditional definition or constitution of a human being while many have written about the male protagonists and the femmes fatales in the noir genre little attention has been given to the other female characters who inhabit the noir world and are transgressors themselves the main concern of the book is to trace the transgressive female characters in contemporary noir thrillers both novels and films by engaging itself with some of the most topical debates within both post feminist and postmodernist theories the book is structured around two key concepts space and the body these temporal and spatial indicators are central in contemporary cultural theories such as postmodernism and post feminism along with other theorizations of gender and the noir genre this means that the analysis is drawn from the classical noir examples and will then arrive at the neo noir sub genre and then will move on to the most recent phenomenon in the genre future noir during the latter half of the twentieth century the gothic emerged as one of the liveliest and most significant areas of academic inquiry within literary film and popular culture studies this volume covers the key concepts and developments associated with twentieth century gothic tracing the development of the mode from the fin de siecle to 9 11 the eighteen chapters reflect the interdisciplinary and ever evolving nature of the gothic which during the century migrated from literature and drama to the cinema and television the volume has both a chronological and thematic focus and particular attention is paid to topics and themes related to race identity marginality and technology chapters on ecogothic gothic studies as a discipline medical humanities queer studies african american studies and russian gothic ensure that the collection is up to date and wide ranging in addition to the introduction by the editors suggested further readings at the end of each chapter are intended to facilitate further independent research by readers and researchers
