in the present work taranatha paints a miraculous picture of the great siddhas of india their lives and the lineages which sprang from their teachings in all the lives of some 59 siddhas are related some well known others more obscure but all linked by their various lineages and by the instructions handed down from siddha to disciple taranatha's account of these remarkable lives is especially valuable as he had as his gurus and as the sources of these accounts three indians from the very traditions about which he wrote with such conviction the lineage accounts are very important for a clear understanding of the tantric upadesas themselves in several places taranatha makes quite sure that his own lineage is irrefutably established so that there is no doubt that he is a participator in the upadesas themselves not merely a hander down of legends the accounts were evidently passed on and due to the special factors involved in the tantric oral tradition we cannot but understand them as being accurate and reliable the figure of tilopā is familiar in tibetan buddhism what is less popular is that his words and teachings before reaching the tibetan plateau were uttered in india and had to pass through nepal a fact which would deserve more attention than before this book is a sort of portrait of that bengali siddha of the tenth century in the first chapter a geographical and historical background is painted a landscape of waters kings polities and cities based on epigraphical numismatic and archaeological material on written travelogues of chinese arab and italian travellers on tibetan accounts and compilations in the second chapter the relevant indo tibetan hagiographic sources are described discussed and outlined in the context of their tradition with a view to characterising such a tradition and its tibetan sprouts mostly among the kagyu lineages the following main entries are introduced tantric buddhism yoginītantras cakrasamvara manobhanga cittaviśrāma uddiyāna dākinī siddha guru and śmaśāna in the third chapter an attempt is made at a biographical picture of tilopā assessing the who the when and the where in the last chapter a preliminary description is given on the bibliographic details and context of the indic and the tibetan sources which have transmitted tilopā's word
