over the last 11 700 years during which human civilization developed the earth has existed within what geologists refer to as the holocene epoch now science is telling us that the holocene epoch in the geological time scale ended replaced by the onset of a new more dangerous anthropocene epoch which began around 1950 the anthropocene epoch is characterized by an anthropogenic rift in the biological cycles of the earth system marking a changed reality in which human activities are now the main geological force impacting the earth as a whole generating at the same time an existential crisis for the world's population what caused this massive shift in the history of the earth in this comprehensive study John Bellamy Foster tells us that a globalized system of capital accumulation has induced humanity to foul its own nest the result is a planetary emergency that threatens all present and future generations throwing into question the continuation of civilization and ultimately the very survival of humanity itself only by addressing the social aspects of the current planetary emergency exploring the theoretical historical and practical dimensions of the capitalism's alteration of the planetary environment is it possible to develop the ecological and social resources for a new journey of hope there is growing consensus that life on the planet is in peril if climate change continues at its current pace at stake is not only the future of many species but of humanity itself as an increasing number of ecological economists have emphasized these problems will only be adequately addressed by re-examining economic systems from an ecological perspective fundamentally calling into question assumptions of unlimited growth and the maximization of shareholder profit foundational to neoliberal capitalism religion and ecology scholars have also increasingly emphasized the ways climate change challenges assumed divides between nature and culture religion and labor economy and ecology and calls for critical and constructive engagement with the religion economy and ecology nexus often though religious engagements with economy and ecology have placed emphasis on individual morality action and agency at the level of consumption patterns or have suggested mere modifications within existing economic paradigms contributors to this volume call into question the adequacy of this approach in light of the urgency of climate change which is always ever entwined with ongoing patterns of exploitation oppression and colonialism in current economic systems rather than tweaking a system of exploitation for instance by emphasizing individual consumption or care for human and non human victims these authors articulate important opportunities for religious engagement activism resistance and solidarity around issues of production and labor recalling that marx linked agencies and labor of people as well as the other than human world these authors aim to articulate a sense in which liberation of people and the planet are intertwined and can be accomplished only through collaboration for their common good the basic intuition driving this volume is that while christianity has by and large become the handmaiden of exploitative capitalism and empire it might also reclaim latent theologies and religious practices that call into question the fundamental valuation of labor without recognition or rest of extractive exploitation and a winner take all praxis in the process christianity might reclaim and reinvest in tenuous historical materializations of transformed ecological and economic relationships while economics might be re informed by a valuation of the shared oikos as well as a just accounting of and remuneration for labor together they might serve the aim of the flourishing of all people and the planet if we were to ask what is the root cause of our current and unprecedented environmental crisis climate change many particularly on the progressive left would refer to the excesses of capitalism and they d be right in eco nihilism the philosophical geopolitics of the climate change apocalypse wendy lynne lee demonstrates that there are no versions of conquest capital compatible with the fact of a finite planet and that a logic whose operating premise is growth is destined to not only exhaust our planetary resources but also generate profound social injustice and geopolitical violence in its pursuit nonetheless it is clear that the violence and injustice of capital is selective some benefit greatly while others are subjugated to its pathological drive to profit hence lee argues that any comprehensive analysis of what jason moore has dubbed the capitalocene must include an equally probing account of human chauvinism that is the axes along which capital is supplied with resources and labor defined in terms of race sex gender and species these axes come ready made to the advantage of capitalist commodification without an understanding of how and why humanity will remain doomed to settling for a sustainably unjust world as opposed to realizing a just and desirable one indeed on our current trajectory we may not even achieve the sustainable the introduction of climate change into the mix of environmental deterioration the ever widening economic gap between global north and global south and the accelerating violence of terrorism civil war and human slavery make of a warming planet a combustible world the only way out requires ending the myth of endless resources a rejection of climate change denial and a radical re valuation of human centeredness not as a locus of power but as an opportunity to take moral and epistemic responsibility for a world whose biotic diversity and ecological integrity make the struggle to realize it worthwhile this solution demands not only an end to capitalism but the deliberate reclamation of value aesthetic moral and civic and a radical transformation of both personal and collective conscience lee appeals to the experiential aesthetics of john dewey and the feminist concept of the standpoint of the subjugated she argues for a version of the precautionary principle informed by an environmentally and socially responsible concept of the desirable future as the clearest path away from the precipice this books takes a deep dive into the historic sociopolitical and economic interests that have resulted in a frontal assault on the very governance of public education recent decades have seen dramatic changes in the landscape of american public education including the closure of local schools elimination of teachers unions and local school board takeover attempts in order to explore the social and political motivations behind these changes the contributors address questions such as what tactics are being used to drive this paradigm shift where teachers are the enemy and schools are harming kids what events in this sociopolitical moment right now make it ripe for dismantling the democratic experiment of public education in an age of sound bites and instant news how can the nuanced and sometimes hypocritical narrative supporting public education compete for attention with the seductive political pabulum of reactionary groups the voices in these chapters include those of curriculum theorists policy analysts education practitioners and leaders and parents all of whom engage in forms of activism at the local and or national level
