for over three thousand years the mediterranean sea has been one of the great centres of world civilisation from the time of historical Troy until the middle of the nineteenth century human activity here decisively shaped much of the course of world history David Abulafia's The Great Sea is the first complete history of the mediterranean from the erection of the mysterious temples on Malta around 3500 BC to the recent reinvention of the mediterranean's shores as a tourist destination part of the argument of Abulafia's book is that the great port cities Alexandria Trieste and Salonika and many others prospered in part because of their ability to allow many different peoples religions and identities to co exist within sometimes very confined spaces he also brilliantly populates his history with identifiable individuals whose lives illustrate with great immediacy the wider developments he is describing the great sea ranges stupendously across time and the whole extraordinary space of the mediterranean from Gibraltar to Jaffa Venice to Alexandria rather than imposing a false unity on the sea and the teeming human activity it has sustained the book emphasises diversity ethnic linguistic religious and political anyone who reads it will leave it with their understanding of those societies and their histories enormously enriched

This lively and dramatic book brings roaring to life the grand sweep of 5,000 years of history in the cradle of civilization. A wonderfully illustrated account of the civilizations that rose and fell on the lands bordering the Mediterranean, the Middle Sea, represents the culmination of a great historian's unparalleled art and scholarship. John Julius Norwich provides brilliant portraits of the Phoenicians, the Egyptians, the Greeks, the Romans, the Byzantines, the Arabs, the French, the Venetians, the Popes and the Pirates of the Gulf. Above all, he deftly traces the intermingling of ancient conflicts and modern sensibilities that shapes life today on the shores of the Middle Sea.

An electrifying narrative history of the Mediterranean from ancient Egypt to 1919 from the bestselling author of The Popes and Sicily, A Short History of the Mediterranean has nurtured three of the most dazzling civilisations of antiquity, witnessed the growth of three of our greatest religions and links three of the world's six continents. John Julius Norwich has visited every country around its shores. Now he tells the story of the Middle Sea, a tale that begins with the pharaohs and ends with the Treaty of Versailles. In a dramatic account of the remarkable civilisations that rose and fell on the lands of the Mediterranean, expertly researched and ingeniously executed, Norwich takes us through the Arab conquests of Syria and North Africa, the Holy Roman Empire and the Crusades, Ferdinand and Isabella and the Spanish Inquisition, the great sieges of Rhodes and Malta by the magnificent pirates of the Barbary Coast and the Battle of Lepanto, Nelson and Napoleon, the Greek War of Independence and the Italian Risorgimento. The Middle Sea is colourful, character-driven history at its most enjoyable and is the culmination of John Julius Norwich's distinguished career as one of the greatest enthusiasts for anecdotal history. An expertly paced, exhilarating read, a landmark in popular history, telling a splendid achievement for its memorable scope and vitality, this wonderfully riveting history reveals our favourite holiday destination in all its glorious epic depth.
