song landscape and identity in medieval northern france explores how medieval song expressed relationships between people and their environments integrating musicology with literary studies ecocriticism and environmental history author jennifer saltzstein compares the nature imagery that pervades the songs of the trouvères of northern france to the physical terrain and climate of the lands on which their authors lived through close readings of music text relationships she reveals how for many medieval songwriters identity was tied to place and configured through attachment to specific landscapes people in the middle ages had chantry chapels mortuary rolls the daily observance of the office of the dead and even purgatory but they were still unable to talk about death their inability wasn't due to religion but philosophy saying someone is dead is nonsense as the person no longer is the one thing that can talk about something that is not as d vance smith shows in this innovative provocative book is literature covering the emergence of english literature from the old english to the late medieval periods arts of dying argues that the problem of how to designate death produced a long tradition of literature about dying which continues in the work of heidegger blanchot and gillian rose philosophy s attempt to designate death s impossibility is part of a literature that imagines a relationship with death a literature that intensively and self reflexively supposes that its very terms might solve the problem of the termination of life a lyrical and elegiac exploration that combines medieval work on the philosophy of language with contemporary theorizing on death and dying arts of dying is an important contribution to medieval studies literary criticism phenomenology and continental philosophy
