for all that has been written about the civil war s impact on the urban northeast and southern home fronts we have until now lacked a detailed picture of how it affected specific communities in the union s midwestern heartland nicole etcheson offers a deeply researched microhistory of one such community putnam county indiana from the compromise of 1850 to the end of reconstruction and shows how its citizens responded to and were affected by the war delving into the everyday life of a small town in one of the nineteenth century s bellwether states a generation at war considers the civil war within a much broader chronological context than other accounts it ranges across three decades to show how the issues of the day particularly race and sectionalism temporarily displaced economic and temperance concerns how the racial attitudes of northern whites changed and how a generation of young men and women coped with the transformative experience of war etcheson interrelates an impressively wide range of topics through temperance and alcohol she illustrates nativism and class consciousness while through an account of a murder she probes ethnicity politics and gender she reveals how some women wanted to maintain dependence and how the war gave independence to others as pensions allowed them to survive without a male provider and she chronicles the major shift in race relations as the most revolutionary change blacks had been excluded from indiana in the 1850s but were invited into putnam county by 1880 etcheson personalizes all of these issues through human stories bringing to life people previously ignored by history whether veterans demanding recognition of their sacrifice women speaking out against liquor or copperheads parading against republicans the introduction of race with the north carolina exodusters marks a particularly effective lens for seeing how the idealism unleashed by lincoln s war influenced the north etcheson also helps us understand how white southerners tried to reunify the country on the basis of shared white racism drawing on personal papers local newspapers pension petitions exoduster pamphlets and more etcheson demonstrates how microhistory helps give new meaning to larger events a generation at war opens a new window on the impact of the civil war on the agrarian north
