Canada's thirteen provinces and territories are significant actors in Canadian society directly shaping cultural, political and economic domains. Regions also play a key role in creating diversity within innovative activity. The role of provinces and territories in setting science, technology and innovation policy is however notably underexplored. Ideas, Institutions and Interests examines each province and territory to offer real world insights into the complexity and opportunities of regionally differentiated innovation policy in a pan continental system. Contributing scholars detail the distinctive ways in which provinces and territories articulate ideas and interests through their institutions, programs and policies. Many of the contributing authors have engaged first hand with either micro or macro level policy innovation and are innovation leaders in their own right, providing invaluable perspectives on the topic. Exploring the vital role of provinces in the last thirty years of science, technology and innovation policy development and implementation, Ideas, Institutions and Interests is an insightful book that places innovation policy in the context of multilevel governance.

The transitional politics of Eurasian space is marked by a constant struggle among three sets of ideas and institutions. The 1 is the remarkable resilience of Soviet ideas and institutions. 2 is an attempt by the regimes of these states to reinvent the historical and cultural traditions of pre-Soviet periods and third is an attempt by a section of the powerful elite to superimpose Western liberal ideas and institutions. There is a strange intertwining of these ideas and institutions. This book examines the extent to which the post-Soviet politics has departed from the Soviet one. What are the new ideational structures emerging in these states and how far have they crystallised into institutions? What are the external influences which are shaping the institutions in the Eurasian space and finally what are the various dynamics of geopolitics in this region? Experts from various countries will delve into the shifting dynamics of Eurasian politics.
