first published in 1986 Lila Abu Lughod's Veiled Sentiments has become a classic ethnography in the field of anthropology during the late 1970s and early 1980s Abu Lughod lived with a community of Bedouins in the western desert of Egypt for nearly two years studying gender relations morality and the oral lyric poetry through which women and young men express personal feelings the poems are haunting the evocation of emotional life vivid but Abu Lughod's analysis also reveals how deeply implicated poetry and sentiment are in the play of power and the maintenance of social hierarchy what begins as a puzzle about a single poetic genre becomes a reflection on the politics of sentiment and the complexity of culture this thirtieth anniversary edition includes a new afterword that reflects on developments both in anthropology and in the lives of this community of Awlad Ali Bedouins who find themselves increasingly enmeshed in national political and social formations the afterword ends with a personal meditation on the meaning for all involved of the radical experience of anthropological fieldwork and the responsibilities it entails for ethnographers a beautifully written almost poetic ethnography of the Bedouins in Egypt as well as a study of gender relations through analysis of their oral lyric poetry the history of emotions is one of the fastest growing fields in current historical debate and this is the first book length introduction to the field synthesizing the current research and offering direction for future study the history of emotions is organized around the debate between social constructivist and universalist theories of emotion that has shaped most emotions research in a variety of disciplines for more than a hundred years social constructivists believe that emotions are largely learned and subject to historical change while universalists insist on the timelessness and pan culturalism of emotions in historicizing and problematizing this binary Jan Plamper opens emotions research beyond constructivism and universalism he also maps a vast terrain of thought about feelings in anthropology philosophy sociology linguistics art history political science the life sciences from nineteenth century experimental psychology to the latest affective neuroscience and history from ancient times to the present day this book deals with many aspects of the land of israel in the first part the emphasis is on descriptions of the land in joshua and other books of the hebrew and greek bible in the second part the focus shifts to the land in history and theology reception history of biblical texts dealing with the land archaeology of palestine and theological hermeneutical implications of taking the land traditions of the bible seriously the result is a rich collection of articles on one of the main themes of the old testament a theme that has a fascinating although not always unproblematic reception history
