this book engages with the long overlooked bicycle as a crucial literary and cultural object in a selection of turn of the century fiction travel writing and non fiction cycling is revealed to be a favoured literary device allowing writers to structure their narratives in new ways or depict a fresh sensory and aesthetic experience moreover this study reveals that from its earliest days the bicycle played a compelling counter cultural role proposing an alternative modernity that directly challenged bourgeois patriarchal capitalist society from blurring gender and class divisions to offering a more empowering interaction with the machine and allowing an embodied and social experience of space the bicycle pointed a human powered route to progress amidst increasingly mechanised visions of the future in the victorian and edwardian eras british explorers sought to become respected geographers and popular public figures downplaying or reframing their reliance on others for survival far from being solitary heroes these explorers were in reality dependent on the bodies senses curiosity and labor of subaltern people and animals in on the backs of others edward armston sheret offers new perspectives on british exploration in this era by focusing on the contributions of the people and animals ordinarily written out of the mainstream histories who made these journeys possible he explores several well known case studies of enduring popular and academic interest such as richard francis burton and john hanning speke s Nile expeditions 1856 59 and 1860 63 isabella bird s travels in north america persia and east asia 1872 c 1900 and captain robert falcon scott s two antarctic expeditions 1901 4 and 1911 13 armston sheret argues that numerous previously ignored stories show the work and agency of subaltern groups in rethinking the history of exploration on the backs of others offers the first book length study of the relationship between exploration and empire and their legacies within academic geography
