it is difficult to overstate the importance of personal consumption both to individual consumers and to the economy while consumer are recognized as valuing market goods and services for the activities they can construct from them in the frameworks of several disciplines consequences of the characteristics of goods and services they use in these activities have not been well studied in the discourse to follow i will contrast knowledge yielding and conventional goods and services as factors in the construction of activities that consumers engage in when they are not in the workplace consumers will be seen as deciding on non work activities and the inputs to these activities according to their objectives and the values and cumulated skills they hold i will suggest that knowledge content in these activities can be efficient for consumer objectives and also have important externalities through its effect on productivity at work and economic growth the exposition will seek to elaborate these points and contribute to multi disciplinal dialogue on consumption it takes as its starting point the contention that consumption is simultaneously an economic and social psychological process and that integration of content can contribute to explanation new perspectives on education for democracy brings together diverse communities of education research in an innovative way to develop a nuanced understanding of the relationship between education and democracy this book synthesises a range of theoretical conceptual and empirical approaches to address the complex challenges faced by young people and societies in the 21st century each chapter provides accounts of local democratic encounters in education while engaging with global debates and issues such as de democratisation and growing social economic and educational inequality this book presents new ways of thinking about democracy local global enactments of democracy through teaching and learning and future thinking for a new era of democracy this book will be relevant for educators researchers and policymakers who are interested in educational sociology critical pedagogy and democratic education this book deals with student perceptions of and attitudes towards democracy and the way democracy is accounted for in the textbooks of four transition countries although the subject nations are very different otherwise they share the trait of transition in the economic political and social arenas as many countries around the world have become liberal democracies in the last decade there has been no investigation of education s role in this process this book addresses that void by examining the state s role in spreading democratic themes and studying the presentation of democracy and human rights in various textbooks
