i accept the resurrection of jesus not as an invention of the community of disciples but as an historical event Ó when a leading orthodox jew makes such a declaration its significance can hardly be overstated pinchas lapide is a rabbi and theologian who has specialized in the study of the new testament in this book he convincingly shows that an irreducible minimum of experience underlies the new testament account of the resurrection however much of the details of the narrative may be open to objection he maintains that life after death is part of the jewish faith experience and that it is jesus messiahship not his resurrection which marks the division between christianity and judaism dr lapide quotes moses maimonides the greatest jewish thinker in his support all these matters which refer to jesus of nazareth only served to make the way free for the king messiah and to prepare the whole world for the worship of god with a united heart Ó

is it possible that early christian anti judaism was directed toward people other than jews michele murray proposes that significant strands of early christian anti judaism were directed against gentile christians more specifically it was directed toward gentile christian judaizers these were christians who combined a commitment to christianity with adherence in varying degrees to jewish practices without viewing such behaviour as contradictory several christian leaders thought that these community members dangerously blurred the boundaries between christianity and judaism as such gentile christian judaizers became the target of much anti jewish rhetoric in various early christian writings evidence of gentile christian judaizers can be found in canonical sources such as pauls letter to the galatians and the book of revelation as well as non canonical sources such as the epistle of barnabas the didache and justin martyr s dialogue with trypho in order to compare the phenomenon of judaizing and the reaction to it of ecclesiastical authorities murray organizes the evidence by probable geographical location using asia minor and syria as the two main loci the phenomenon of gentile christian judaizing is examined within the broader context of jewish christian relations in the early centuries and is the first attempt to draw all possible references to gentile christian judaizers together into one study to consider them as a whole this discussion invites readers to reflect on the existence of gentile christian judaizers as another point on the continuum of jewish christian relations in the greco roman world an area murray concludes that needs to be more carefully defined
