large modern cities have effectively declared their independence from nature but while they take up only three percent of the world's land surface their ecological footprints actually cover the entire globe humanity is building an urban future yet urban resource use is threatening the future of humanity and the natural world to meet the aspirations of city people in both developing and developed countries bold new initiatives are needed modern cities are an astonishing human achievement as centres of innovation they are humanity's cultural playgrounds their communication and transport systems have developed a global reach they are attractive to investors because they can offer a vast variety of services at comparatively low per capita costs but are they viable as ecological systems the planning of new cities as well as the retrofit of existing cities needs to undergo a profound paradigm shift mere sustainable development is not enough to be compatible with natural systems cities need to move away from linear systems of resource use and learn to operate as closed loop circular systems to ensure their long term future they need to develop an environmentally enhancing restorative relationship between themselves and the natural systems on which they still depend creating regenerative cities is a concise solution oriented manual for creating regenerative urbanisation a wide range of technical management and policy solutions already exist but implementation has been too slow and too little in large part because the kinds of holistic approaches needed are still unfamiliar to fragmented and process driven urban policy making and governance herbert girardet's 30 years experience as an ecologist thinker film maker and consultant working around the world has created this unique combination of tried and tested best practices and policies which outlines the fundamental shifts needed in the way we think about our cities here's a perverse truth from new orleans to bangladesh women especially poor women of colour are suffering most from a crisis they have done nothing to cause yet where in environmental policy are the voices of elderly european women dying in heatwaves of african girls dropping out of school due to drought our highest profile climate activists are women and girls but at the top table it's men deciding the earth's future we're not all in it together but we could be instead of expecting individual women to save the planet what we need are visionary global climate policies that are gender inclusive and promote gender equality anne karpf shines a light on the radical ideas compelling research and tireless campaigns led by and for women around the world that have inspired her to hope her conversations with female activists show how we can fight back with strength in diversity and faced with the most urgent catastrophe of our times she offers a powerful vision a green new deal for women
