the study of pre modern anthropology requires the close examination of the relationship between nature and human society which has been both precarious and threatening as well as productive soothing inviting and pleasurable much depends on the specific circumstances as the works by philosophers theologians poets artists and medical practitioners have regularly demonstrated it would not be good enough as previous scholarship has commonly done to examine simply what the various writers or artists had to say about nature while modern scientists consider just the hard core data of the objective world cultural historians and literary scholars endeavor to comprehend the deeper meaning of the concept of nature presented by countless writers and artists only when we have a good grasp of the interactions between people and their natural environment are we in a position to identify and interpret mental structures social and economic relationships medical and scientific concepts of human health and the messages about all existence as depicted in major art works in light of the current conditions threatening to bring upon us a global crisis it matters centrally to take into consideration pre modern discourses on nature and its enormous powers to understand the topoi and tropes determining the concepts through which we perceive nature nature thus proves to be a force far beyond all human comprehensibility being both material and spiritual depending on our critical approaches this book explores new approaches to the study of the complex relation between models and copies excellent studies dedicated to copies continue to be published focusing mainly on works of art and techniques but the research should be extended in directions that have remained virtually unexplored until now considering new perspectives and contexts this volume intends to push the boundaries of current research on copies proposing new points of view and considering new relations between models and their reproductions contributors include r arnheim e vandeweghe f gallaire b leshem c naya p alvarez s suykens s rose d boerio m rijks m bellavitis b anderson guthrie e giffin and s abplanalp the notions of other peoples cultures and natural conditions have always been determined by the epistemology of imagination and fantasy providing much freedom and creativity and yet have also created much fear anxiety and horror in this regard the pre modern world demonstrates striking parallels with our own insofar as the projections of alterity might be different by degrees but they are fundamentally the same by content dreams illusions projections concepts hopes utopias dystopias desires and emotional attachments are as specific and impactful as the physical environment this volume thus sheds important light on the various lenses used by people in the middle ages and the early modern age as to how they came to terms with their perceptions images and notions previous scholarship focused heavily on the history of mentality and history of emotions whereas here the history of pre modern imagination and fantasy assumes center position imaginary things are taken seriously because medieval and early modern writers and artists clearly reveal their great significance in their works and their daily lives this approach facilitates a new deep structure analysis of pre modern culture how can the concept of nostalgia illuminate the culturally specific ways in which societies understand the contested relationship between the past present and future the word nostalgia was invented in the late seventeenth century to describe the debilitating effects of homesickness now widely defined as a sense of longing for a lost past initially it was more closely linked with dislocation in space by exploring some of its many textual visual and musical manifestations in the tumultuous period between c 1350 and 1800 this volume resists the assumption that nostalgia is a distinctive by product of modernity it also forges a fruitful link between three lively areas of current scholarly enquiry memory temporality and emotion the contributors deploy nostalgia as a tool for investigating perceptions of the passage of time and historical change unsettling
