this edited volume has taken us a step forward in advancing our understanding of global cities and their immediate functional and spatial regions in contemporary globalization i would recommend it to both geographers and urban theorists and as a course text for those who are interested in globalization and world cities progress in human geography this comprehensive collection hits some important academic and policy targets in very timely fashion this is a book that will surely be a useful reference point for both students and researchers alike international planning studies for those new to the debate over the nexus of global urban relations this volume is a useful introduction to a number of the key issues and concerns of this approach although familiarity with the global city framework would contextualize some of the discussion for those more familiar with the extant literature this collection has enough that is new to encourage reflection international affairs i strongly recommend this book it begins to provide us with a way to think across traditionally urban and regional scales of analysis and dialogue that alone is a welcome addition to the now massive if often fragmented literature on globalization and its manifold consequences regional studies well edited and multi faceted regional studiethere are now more than three hundred city regions around the world with populations of more than one million as globalization intensifies these city regions come to pose many new questions and problems this book presents a highly original and multifaceted review of these issues by some of the leading researchers in the field this guide includes chapter notes key terms 8 10 review questions and 10 15 activities per chapter and references to the website throughout this volume provides a unique open inter disciplinary dialogue across the humanities and social sciences to further our understanding of the phenomenon of regions and regionalism in a globalized world both at the theoretical and empirical levels what comprises a region what are the different regional dynamic processes that take place what is the relationship between the regional and the global what role does identity building play bringing together scholars from various disciplines within and across the social sciences and the humanities to reflect on these questions the book explores how regions are imagined constructed understood and explained in different academic disciplines each chapter addresses these common questions and uses its own disciplinary lenses to answer them in addition the volume offers interesting reflections on the academic borders constructed in the study of regions thus demonstrating the importance of obtaining insights from both social scientists and humanities scholars in order to better understand the relevance of regions in a complex and globalized world an important work for scholars and postgraduate students in many fields including political science international relations sociology economics geography history and literature as well as for those interested in regionalism and area studies
