together with the sixteenth century the nineteenth century is universally recognized as one of the two most creative periods in protestant thought it is also widely regarded as a period that marked a break with the heritage of the reformation in five elegantly written essays brian gerrish challenges this assumption by showing that some of the foremost leaders of nineteenth century liberal protestantism found loyalty to their tradition compatible with change and desired a development rather than either rejection or repetition of traditional doctrines gerrish considers five basic theological issues and shows how each is developed in the thinking of a nineteenth century theologian of the reformed tradition the formal question of continuity and change in theological reflection is viewed through the work of schleiermacher four other reformed leaders are then studied to exemplify the material transformation of particular doctrines nevin the church john mcleod campbell the atonement alexander schweizer providence and predestination and biedermann life eternal gerrish permits each of the five theologians to speak for himself about what he was doing and how it constituted a continuation of old doctrines in so doing gerrish invites the provocative question whether there was not something characteristically protestant about their thinking precisely because they understood continuity as a kind of change the essays offer a reassessment of nineteenth century theological history fresh interpretations of some classical answers to enduring theological questions and a contribution to the wider problem of tradition in the modern world constructive contemporary theology requires serious engagement with the theologians of the past this book offers a series of studies in the christology of key representatives in the reformed tradition engaging their thought for contemporary dogmatics thinkers from each of the five centuries in which reformed theology has flourished are represented john calvin john owen jonathan edwards william shedd donald baillie and kathryn tanner each of whom in different ways challenge conventional accounts of christology the book is organized thematically linking historic and contemporary discussions of christology in theology and philosophy by engaging the thinking of these theologians in a collegial way using their work as means of promoting constructive systematic theology today oliver crisp presents an important contribution to broadening our understanding of reformed theology by showing how important theologians have taken views often at odds with textbook accounts of the tradition written in an accessible style this book will appeal to a wide range of readers including upper level undergraduates graduate students and scholars of christian theology philosophy and religious studies a dynamic array of scholars here inspects the role of the reformed confessional tradition in the reading and interpretation of scripture written by contributors not only from the west but also from hungary romania india south africa and china these essays recognize the influence of one's context in doing exegetical work wide ranging and lucid reformed theology identity and ecumenicity ii is an excellent resource for readers looking to examine current biblical and theological trends in reformed thought contributors denise mackermann peter balla brian k blount hendrik bosman h russel botman william p brown h j bernard combrink beverly roberts gaventa zolt gereb theodore hiebert jaqueline e lapsley bernard lategan james luther mays j clinton mccann jr alexander j mckelway patrick d miller elna mouton piet j naud ed noort e a obeng douglas f ottati ronald a piper cynthia l rigby d r sadananda konrad schmid dirk smit iain torrance hans weder carver t yu the investigation of union with christ and justification has been dominated by the figure of john calvin calvin's influence however has been exaggerated in our own day theologians within the early modern reformed tradition contributed to the development of these doctrines and did not view calvin as the normative theologian of the tradition john v fesko therefore goes beyond calvin and explores union with christ and justification in the reformation early orthodox and high orthodox periods of the reformed tradition and covers lesser known but equally important figures such as juan de valdes peter martyr vermigli girolamo zanchi william perkins john owen francis turretin and herman witsius the study also covers theologians that either lie outside or transgress the reformed tradition such as martin luther philip melanchthon faustus socinus jacob arminius and richard baxter by treating this diverse body of figures the study reveals areas of agreement and diversity on these two doctrines the author demonstrates that among the diverse formulations all surveyed reformed theologians accord justification priority over sanctification within the broader rubric of union with christ fesko shows that reformed theologians affirm both union with christ and the golden chain of salvation ideas that moderns find incompatible in sum rather than reading an individual theologian isolated from his context this study provides a contextual reading of union with christ and justification in the early modern reformed context
