drawing from an interdisciplinary body of research and data women of piracy employs a criminological lens to explore how women have been involved in and

impacted by maritime piracy operations from the 16th century to present day piracy off the coast of somalia the book challenges and resists popular understandings of women as peripheral to the criminal enterprise of piracy by presenting and analyzing their roles and experiences as victims perpetrators and criminal justice actors showing that women have been and continue to be central figures in maritime piracy unfolding in three parts part one sets the context by providing readers with a history of the masculinization of the sea part two focuses on the gendered division of labor in piracy operations discussing how and why the roles and responsibilities associated with this gendered labor have emerged persisted evolved and or ceased over time as well as considering which roles and responsibilities appear to be context specific and which seem to transgress geographical locations part three explores how women have or have not been brought to justice for their participation in crimes of piracy as well as the roles of women in efforts to combat piracy the overarching objective is to ignite a broader discussion about the various cultural social historical and economic forces that create opportunities for women to participate in maritime piracy and counter piracy why women continue to be invisible figures of piracy and what implications this has for how we study police and bring pirates to justice the first criminologically grounded global study exploring the continuity and evolution of women in maritime piracy this book will be of great interest to students and scholars of criminology gender feminist studies international relations anthropology history and political geography it will also be useful to maritime and law enforcement professionals

paul axelrod and john reid take the reader through one hundred years of the complex and turbulent history of youth university and society contributors explore the question of how students have been affected by war and social change and discuss who was able to attend university and who was not showing how access to privilege has changed over the years soo ah kwon explores youth of color activism focusing on the political conditions that enable and limit youth of color from achieving meaningful change given the entrenchment of nonprofits within the logic of the neoliberal state contemporary social transformations characterised by multi dimensional globalisation and technological change have lent new impetus to the emergence of internationally oriented and interdisciplinary childhood and youth studies analysis of sharpened polarisations of chances and risks within and between generations in specific life circumstances meets up with the re conceptualisation of childhood and youth as social constructions within the life course as such insulated national discourses are no longer an adequate framework to address such issues economic and cultural globalisation processes exert dual and reciprocal influences restructuring societies and identities from within and without this collection offers a three fold thematic focus on the social construction of the life course privileging gendered and family transitions and transformations on the contours of not belonging in particular bringing migration and poverty into the spotlight and on the potential of virtual worlds for creating and enabling new positive and negative forms of individual social and political action on the part of young people this collection thus offers a particular snapshot of the current landscape of childhood and youth studies and it provides a set of exemplars from diverse national contexts each chapter can stand for itself but the contributions are ordered thematically not according to the corner of the world from which they derive as the introductory chapter explores the intention is via a loose vectoring of theme and context to encourage multiple opportunities for reflection on relations between the specificities and commonalities of children s and young people s lives today this volume joins the growing library of scholarly resources for international and interdisciplinary childhood and youth studies it brings together well established and young scholars writing from an unusual range of national and cultural contexts the collection will be of interest not simply for specialist researchers and those in related fields but equally as a teaching and learning resource for higher education professionals and students in social sciences and education including courses that link theory and research with policy and practice
