much attention has been devoted in recent years to christian asceticism in late antiquity but christianity did not introduce asceticism to the ancient world an underlying theme of this fascinating study of pagan asceticism is that much of the work on christian holy men has ignored earlier manifestations of asceticism in antiquity and the way roman society confronted it accordingly james francis turns to the second century the balmy late afternoon of rome's classical empire when the conflict between asceticism and authority reached a turning point francis begins with the emperor marcus aurelius 121-180 who warned in his meditations against displaying oneself as a man keen to impress others with a reputation for asceticism or beneficence the stoic aurelius saw ascetic self-discipline as a virtue but one to be exercised in moderation like other roman aristocrats of his day he perceived practitioners of ostentatious physical asceticism as a threat to prevailing norms and the established order prophecy sorcery miracle-working charismatic leadership expressions of social discontent and advocacy of alternative values regarding wealth property marriage and sexuality were the issues provoking the controversy if aurelius defined the acceptable limits of ascetical practice then the poet lucian depicted the threat ascetics were perceived to pose to the social status quo through his biting satire in an eye-opening analysis of philostratus's life of apollonius of tyana francis shows how roman society reined in its deviant ascetics by rehabilitating them into pillars of traditional values celsus's true doctrine shows how the views pagans held of their own ascetics influenced their negative view of christianity finally francis points out striking parallels between the conflict over pagan asceticism and its christian counterpart by treating pagan asceticism seriously in its own right francis establishes the context necessary for understanding the great flowering of asceticism in late antiquity
