this book is a completely new detailed and comprehensive survey of the structure and functioning of the new regime in china extensive use has been made of basic official documents but it has not been financially feasible to include a large documentary appendix as had originally been hoped the present study is inevitably introductory and can make no claim to being definitive the communist experiment in china is still too much in its early phases and too little open to critical outside observation to permit anything like an exhaustive analysis despite the unavoidable limitations attaching to any study largely based on chinese communist official pronouncements and on a controlled press it is believed that the study will serve a useful purpose in outlining the general machinery of government in china and the basic policies behind it foreword

the principles of party leadership examined here are primarily those derived by revolutionary chinese communist cadres under mao the period of the rise and fall of the great leap optimism is emphasized the ccp sought to reshape not only social and economic systems but also the consciousness of its citizens dr liu s comprehensive study offers a rare glimpse into the mechanics of maoist mass communication and its lasting impact on national integration by analyzing the successes and failures of these campaigns the book provides valuable insights into the limits of propaganda as a tool for societal transformation perfect for historians political scientists and anyone interested in the intersection of ideology media and modern governance communications and national integration in communist china presents a compelling narrative of one of history s most ambitious experiments in reshaping human consciousness this title is part of uc press s voices revived program which commemorates university of california press s mission to seek out and cultivate the brightest minds and give them voice reach and impact drawing on a backlist dating to 1893 voices revived makes high quality peer reviewed scholarship accessible once again using print on demand technology this title was originally published in 1971 in this volume five reports on the experiences of central and east european sinologists in communist china who lived in that country between 1950 and 1966 several years and in different positions are collected systematized and evaluated to present the results of this effort chronographic criteria are applied however this book is certainly not another history of the prc although it may be called a piece of historiography it differs from conventional histories in that the reports included tell what their authors have been witnessing and not what they know about china and that in that sense they are both highly fragmentary and highly subjective on the other hand they provide insights into the daily life of citizens of socialist countries in the prc as well as into daily life in china in the 1950s and early 1960s moreover china specialists may find a wealth of new footnotes provided by the reports
