this book goes beyond other police leadership books to teach practitioners how to think about policing in a structured way that synthesizes criminological theory statistics research design applied research and what works and what doesn't in policing into mental models a mental model is a representation of how something works using a mental model framework to simplify complex concepts readers will take away an in depth understanding of how cognitive biases affect our ability to understand and interpret data what empirical research says about effective police interventions how statistical data should be structured for management meetings and how to evaluate interventions for efficiency and effectiveness while evidence based practice is critical to advancing the police profession it is limited in scope and is only part of what is necessary to support sustainable change in policing policing requires a scientifically based framework to understand and interpret data in a way that minimizes cognitive bias to allow for better responses to complex problems data and research have advanced so rapidly in the last several decades that it is difficult for even the most ambitious of police leaders to keep pace the twenty one mental models were synthesized to create a framework for any police public or community leader to better understand how cognitive bias contributes to misunderstanding data and gives the reader the tools to overcome those biases to better serve their communities the book is intended for a wide range of audiences including law enforcement and community leaders scholars and policy experts who specialize in policing students of criminal justice organizations and management reporters and journalists individuals who aspire to police careers and citizen consumers of information about policing anyone who is going to make decisions about their communities based on data has a responsibility to be numerate and this book twenty one mental models that can change policing a framework for using data and research for overcoming cognitive bias will help you become just that trying hard to live out a dream struggling to stay afloat dora thought that once she'd convinced her husband to allow her to pursue her longtime dream the rest would be easy after all how hard could it be to operate a successful soul food restaurant others had done it just not here but why was this any different than any other place she never thought she'd be welcomed with open arms but she didn't expect to be avoided like she had some sort of communicable disease either she'd done all of the research a brief internship at a popular restaurant and gone through all of the changes the city put her through white people didn't want to work for her simply because she is black and blacks thought that it was forbidden for a black person to put a soul food restaurant in a predominantly white neighborhood therefore they refused to come to chesterfield to work in a soul food restaurant for a black person an african she had no choice but to hire some riffraff whose ultimate intentions were to deplete her resources a muslim who refused to touch pork because of his religious beliefs and a psycho who came to work with his house hold belongs his first day of work what else did they want from her what else could go wrong she'd been challenged and tried and she was weary from the rollercoaster ride they'd taken her on now after all she'd dealt with here she was still trying to get her tiny piece of the master's territory jim keays the lead singer of the masters apprentices tells of life in a top rock band in australia in the sixties the life of jesus the son of god was permeated with prayer prayer formed the foundation of his earthly life and provided the spiritual strength for his teaching ministry and atoning work the gospels record at least twenty three occasions of prayer in the lord's life and they reveal the master's plan for effectiveness and blessing in personal prayer leslie flynn reflects upon these principles of prayer to discover direction for the believer's own prayer experience
