this collection takes the issue that most divides this country and moves it to the quiet intimate stories of people from across the country this collection isn't meant to advocate a position instead we want the personal stories and reflections from people who come from diverse backgrounds and want to share their american story in afro atlantic flight michelle d commander traces how post civil rights black american artists intellectuals and travelers envision literal and figurative flight back to africa as a means by which to heal the dispossession caused by the slave trade through ethnographic historical literary and filmic analyses commander shows the ways that cultural producers such as octavia butler thomas allen harris and saidiya hartman engage with speculative thought about slavery the spiritual realm and africa thereby structuring the imaginary that propels future return flights she goes on to examine black americans cultural heritage tourism in and migration to ghana bahia brazil and various sites of slavery in the us south to interrogate the ways that a cadre of actors produces africa and contests master narratives compellingly these material flights do not always satisfy black americans individualistic desires for homecoming and liberation leading commander to focus on the revolutionary possibilities inherent in psychic speculative returns and to argue for the development of a pan africanist stance that works to more effectively address the contemporary resonances of slavery that exist across the afro atlantic race and democracy in the americas examines dimensions of the comparative dynamics of race and ethnicity with a directed focus on the americas most particularly brazil and the united states brazil and the united states are two countries in the americas that have been major hosts for the african diaspora both countries experienced prolonged enslavement of africans and both now claim to be beacons of democracy for much of the developing world both afro brazilians and african americans have fielded major liberation movements against racism and oppression yet both groups continue to experience considerable residual racial discrimination and displacement brazil and the u s remain racialized societies though both officially purport to be otherwise the chapters of this volume illuminate a common search for understanding how race operates in societies generally and how shapes life opportunities for african americans and afro brazilians both oppressed by this most detrimental social construction the project that fueled this volume represented a rare opportunity for collaboration between afro brazilian scholars and their african american counterparts this volume offers a passionate conversation between colleagues who have endured common sociopolitical and cultural struggles but who have only belatedly been able to meet and connect as individuals both groups share identities as scholars and activists for neither identity alone is sufficient to nourish the longings of their hearts nor of their consciences this volume also represents an all too rare opportunity to give voice and expression to the work of afro brazilian scholars volume 9 of the national political science review also carries a special tribute to mack henry jones a senior black political scientist retiring from atlanta university and honors jones s legacy and continues his quest for understanding the nature and intricacies of oppression and possible paths to liberation this essential work will be of particular interest to ethnic studies specialists african american studies scholars political scientists historians and sociologists georgia a persons is professor of political science in the school of public policy at georgia institute of technology where she also directs the center for the study of social change this chronicle of the exchange of popular culture between brazil and the united states in the interwar years shows how that exchange affected both countries ideas of race and nation this in depth study on preaching to second generation korean americans the first of its kind is based on empirical and ethnographic fieldwork matthew d kim conducted surveys and semi structured qualitative interviews with korean american pastors and second generation young adult respondents in three geographic regions of the united states the midwest the west coast and the east coast his primary conceptual framework employs social psychologists hazel markus and paula nurius theory of possible selves to facilitate the process of congregational exegesis in the second generation korean american church context this book offers a new contextual homiletic model that enables korean american preachers to engage in deeper levels of ethnic and cultural analysis in their sermonic preparation simultaneously the author reconstructs conventional preaching roles of korean american preachers and second generation listeners so that they may co creatively imagine new possible selves that radically advance christian mission and practice in the world this book will serve as a primary or secondary source for upper level undergraduate graduate and postgraduate courses on preaching communication studies ethnic and racial studies cross cultural ministry or social psychology economic development strategies and the evolution of violence in latin america explores the links between latin american governments economic policies and the nature and dynamics of inter group violence based on the patterns of ten countries the contributions to this volume trace the remarkable transformation from open ideological conflict to the explosion of social seemingly apolitical violence the upsurge of urban crime and the confrontations over natural resources and drugs across the region spanning from Mexico to Argentina the variations in economic success and in conflict prevention and transformation can guide policymakers development professionals and activists committed to conflict sensitive development

The study of white collar crime remains a central concern for criminologists around the world and research concentrates on its nature prevalence causes and responses however most books on white collar crime tend to focus on Anglo American examples which is surprising given the amount of rich data and research taking place in mainland Europe this new handbook seeks to reset the balance and for the first time presents an overview of state of the art research on white collar crime in Europe adding to the existing Anglo American body of knowledge the handbook will discuss specific European topics and typical European features of white collar crime the Routledge handbook of white collar and corporate crime in Europe consists of more than thirty chapters on topics ranging from the Icelandic banking crisis to the origins of the study of white collar crime to contemporary topics such as white collar crime in countries post transition from communist regimes the illegal e waste trade and white collar crime in professional football furthermore the book contains extensive case study analyses of landmark European cases of white collar crime the editors have gathered together the leading voices in the field and a final section offers commentaries on white collar crime in Europe from eminent criminologists David Friedrichs and Hazel Croall this handbook will thus serve as a work of reference for all scholars and students engaged in the study of corporate and white collar crime and will also set out directions for new research in the future
