there are currently more than six million filipino workers in over 120 countries in jobs ranging from maids to managers the philippine government has encouraged the manpower exodus to absorb the country s surplus labour and to bring foreign exchange earnings into the philippine economy however non governmental organizations have argued that social dysfunctions associated with working abroad have not been adequately addressed using an analytical framework that blends multiple stakeholders perspectives the author assesses the historical demographic economic social and political dimensions of philippine labour migration policy from the early 1900s to the late 1990s focusing on recent issues he provides an integrated evaluation from a public policy perspective balancing both state and societal viewpoints a separate soft cover edition is available from de la salle university press for customers in the philippines only

how do modern states emerge from the turmoil of ungoverned spaces this is the question reo matsuzaki ponders in statebuilding by imposition comparing taiwan and the philippines under the colonial rule of japan and the united states in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries he shows similar situations produce different outcomes and yet lead us to one conclusion contemporary statebuilding efforts by the us and the un start from the premise that strong states can and should be constructed through the establishment of representative government institutions a liberalized economy and laws that protect private property and advance personal liberties but when statebuilding runs into widespread popular resistance as it did in both taiwan the philippines statebuilding success depends on reconfiguring the very fabric of society embracing local elites rather than the broad population and giving elites the power to discipline the people in taiwan under japanese rule local elites behaved as obedient and effective intermediaries and contributed to government authority in the philippines under us rule they became the very cause of the state s weakness by aggrandizing wealth corrupting the bureaucracy and obstructing policy enforcement as statebuilding by imposition details taiwanese and filipino history teaches us that the imposition of democracy is no guarantee of success when forming a new state and that illiberal actions may actually be more effective matsuzaki s controversial political history forces us to question whether statebuilding given what it would take for this to result in the construction of a strong state is the best way to address undergoverned spaces in the world today
