the main topics pursued in this volume are based on empirical insights derived from germanic logical and typological dispositions about aspect modality links these are probed in a variety of non related languages the logically establishable links are the following

modal verbs are aspect sensitive in the selection of their infinitival complements embedded infinitival perfectivity implies root modal reading whereas embedded infinitival imperfectivity triggers epistemic readings however in marked contexts such as negated ones the aspectual affinities of modal verbs are neutralized or even subject to markedness inversion all of this suggests that languages that do not or only partially bestow upon full modal verb paradigms seek to express modal variations in terms of their aspect oppositions this typological tenet is investigated in a variety of languages from indo european german slavic armenian african asian amerindian and creoles seeming deviations and idiosyncrasies in the interaction between aspect and modality turn out to be highly rule based

this book offers original theoretical accounts and a wealth of descriptive information concerning modality in present day english at the same time it provides fresh impetus to more general linguistic issues such as grammaticalization colloquialization or the interplay between sociolinguistic and syntactic constraints the articles fall into four sections a the semantics and pragmatics of core modal verbs b the status of emerging modal items c stylistic variation and change d sociolinguistic variation and syntactic models the book is of considerable value to students and teachers of english and linguistics at undergraduate and graduate level worldwide trends in linguistics is a series of books that open new perspectives in our understanding of language the series publishes state of the art work on core areas of linguistics across theoretical frameworks as well as studies that provide new insights by building bridges to neighbouring fields such as neuroscience and cognitive science trends in linguistics considers itself a forum for cutting edge research based on solid empirical data on language in its various manifestations including sign languages it regards linguistic variation in its synchronic and diachronic dimensions as well as in its social contexts as important sources of insight for a better understanding of the design of linguistic systems and the ecology and evolution of language trends in linguistics publishes monographs and outstanding dissertations as well as edited volumes which provide the opportunity to address controversial topics from different empirical and theoretical viewpoints high quality standards are ensured through anonymous reviewing the oxford handbook of cognitive linguistics presents a comprehensive overview of the main theoretical concepts and descriptive theoretical models of cognitive linguistics and covers its various subfields theoretical as well as applied the first twenty chapters give readers the opportunity to acquire a thorough knowledge of the fundamental analytic concepts and descriptive models of cognitive linguistics and their background the book starts with a set of chapters discussing different conceptual phenomena that are recognized as key concepts in cognitive linguistics prototypicality metaphor metonymy embodiment perspectivization mental spaces etc a second set of chapters deals with cognitive grammar construction grammar and word grammar which each in their own way bring together the basic concepts into a particular theory of grammar and a specific model for the description of grammatical phenomena special attention is given to the interrelation between cognitive and construction grammar a third set of chapters compares cognitive linguistics with other forms of linguistic research functional linguistics autonomous linguistics and the history of linguistics thus giving a readers a better grip on the position of cognitive linguistics within the landscape of linguistics at large the remaining chapters apply these basic notions to various more specific linguistic domains illustrating how cognitive linguistics deals with the traditional linguistic subdomains phonology morphology lexicon syntax text and discourse and demonstrating how it handles linguistic variation and change finally they consider its importance in the domain of applied linguistics and look at interdisciplinary links with research fields such as philosophy and psychology with a well known cast of contributors from around the world this reference work will be of interest to researchers and advanced students in cognitive linguistics psychology cognitive science and anthropology linguistics language english abstract wherever we look we see language constituting the world not just reflecting it for instance the words for colours make a reality they don't just name things which are there the spectrum isn't divided into seven primary colours all the colours merge into one another according to structural linguistics by using language we are not reflecting a given reality but are rather construing one systemic functional grammar developed by M. A. K. Halliday states just this construal feature of language as well that language functions to make meanings and not to only refer to the outside world but furthermore elaborates on how a text makes those meanings it focuses therefore on the functional description of language the basic assumption is that language use is always functional people do not just talk or just write but rather any use of language serves a specific purpose namely to make meanings the primary concern of systemic functional linguistics can therefore be summed up under the questions how is language structured for use 3 how does it make meanings according to Halliday language makes meanings on three different levels simultaneously on the experiential level because it represents experience on the interpersonal level because language is used to interact with each other and on the textual level because we organize our message somehow this research paper will focus on the textual metafunction of language which is the theory of the clause being organized as a message the aim is to show that text itself construes the context by involving meaningful choices concerning what to put in thematic position and by means of cohesion thus context is not only created through coherence i.e. the outside world in an exciting departure in the growing field of discourse analysis culture text combines a fresh approach to theory with exemplary demonstrations of interdisciplinary analysis despite its emphasis on text cultural studies has kept most forms of discourse analysis at arm's length positioned at the conjunction of linguistic and poststructuralist approaches to discourse analysis this book argues for a textual metalanguage for cultural studies and for a reevaluation of methodology mathematics education research routinely receives the attention of educators mathematicians linguists psychologists anthropologists and others in this volume the induction of students into mathematical meaning making is studied through the prism of these several disciplines what unites all such approaches to pedagogy and to the assessment of pedagogy and to the subject matter of mathematics itself is semiotics myrdene anderson teaches at purdue university adalira saenz ludlow teaches at the u of north carolina shea zetlweiger is former chair at mount union college ohio victor v cifarelli teaches at the u of north carolina
