from healthcare to workplace conduct the federal government is taking on ever more responsibility for managing our lives at the same time americans have never been more disaffected with washington seeing it as an intrusive incompetent wasteful giant the most alarming consequence of ineffective policies in addition to unrealized social goals is the growing threat to the government s democratic legitimacy understanding why government fails so often and how it might become more effective is an urgent responsibility of citizenship in this book lawyer and political scientist peter schuck provides a wide range of examples and an enormous body of evidence to explain why so many domestic policies go awry and how to right the foundering ship of state schuck argues that washington s failures are due not to episodic problems or partisan bickering but rather to deep structural flaws that undermine every administration democratic and republican these recurrent weaknesses include unrealistic goals perverse incentives poor and distorted information systemic irrationality rigidity and lack of credibility a mediocre bureaucracy powerful and inescapable markets and the inherent limits of law to counteract each of these problems schuck proposes numerous achievable reforms from avoiding moral hazard in student loan mortgage and other subsidy programs to empowering consumers of public services simplifying programs and testing them for cost effectiveness and increasing the use of big data the book also examines successful policies including the g i bill the voting rights act the earned income tax credit and airline deregulation to highlight the factors that made them work an urgent call for reform why government fails so often is essential reading for anyone curious about why government is in such disrepute and how it can do better much has changed in us politics since the historic 2008 election while the press covers the actions and agendas of the new administration other impacts of this political shift have not received as much attention these changes have forced the nation to rethink the necessary role of government the role of the private market the impact of science technology and information and ultimately our place in the world what do we expect from our government provides a glimpse at this set of developments by focusing on a number of policies such as climate change immigration and terrorism as well as governance processes such as oversight elections and campaigns and regulation it highlights the role of research in public sector decision making the role of the academy the relationship between economic imperatives and scientific information and dealing with uncertainty and change in addition it includes attention to broader issues such as national economic and fiscal policies and strategies for assuring equity and access in programs six american flags stand on the moon irrefutable proof of government s ability to overcome difficult challenges yet evidence of failure surrounds us from the devastation of hurricane katrina to the 2008 09 economic meltdown to the chronic dysfunction of our urban schools william d eggers and john o leary argue that playing the blame game is an exercise in futility in if we can put a man on the moon they go beyond partisan squabbles to take a look at the process by which government tackles its biggest challenges based on a review of over seventy five government undertakings in the united states and abroad eggers and o leary pinpoint what it takes to successfully bring a public sector initiative from great idea to desired results they distill this journey to success into a practical set of steps that every public initiative must go through to deliver on its promise book jacket citizens have lost trust in their institutions of public governance in trying to fix the problem presidents and prime ministers have misdiagnosed the patient failing to recognize that government bureaucracies are inseparable from political institutions as a result career officials have become adroit at managing the blame game but much less so at embracing change donald savoie looks to the united states great britain france and canada to assess two of the most important challenges confronting governments throughout the western world the concentration of political power and the changing role of government bureaucracy the four countries have distinct institutions shaped by distinct histories but what they have in common is a professional non partisan civil service when presidents and prime ministers decide to expand their personal authority national institutions must adjust while bureaucracies grow to fill the gap paradoxically further constricting government efficacy the side effects are universal political power is increasingly centralized parliament congress and the national assembly have been weakened cabinet has lost standing political parties have been debased and civil services have been knocked off their moorings reduced responsibility and increased transparency make civil servants slow to take risks and politicians quick to point fingers government astutely diagnoses the problem of declining trust in government presidents and prime ministers have failed to see that efficacy in government is tied to well performing institutions barely a week goes by without another government u turn and with the cost of living crisis and rising mortgage rates we really need those in charge to get it right in this timely book cambridge professor dennis c grube explores the pitfalls failures and successes of those in power around the world a must read sebastian payne convincing david lammy mp we live in an era when we really need governments to be effective the economy our health and the future of the planet are at stake but so often they can seem clueless and their decisions leave us confused with insight and wit grube explains how governments can improve their decision making and by examining fascinating case studies he highlights the key factors that make for effective government with the stakes higher than ever before this original and important book is an essential read for any concerned citizen who wants to understand why governments make the wrong decisions and crucially what can be done about it highly original and very entertaining gavin esler there is a real gap for this book isabel hardman the author of state of the nation seeks to determine the main reasons for the failings and frustrations associated with government and offers concrete steps that americans can take to become politically engaged and to help the united states to improve its performance 3 tables government efficiency and effectiveness views on the progress and plans for addressing government wide management challenges reasonable people disagree about the reach of the federal government but there is near universal consensus that it should protect us from such dangers as bacteria infested food harmful drugs toxic pollution crumbling bridges and unsafe toys and yet the agencies that shoulder these responsibilities are in shambles if they continue to decline lives will be lost and natural resources will be squandered in this timely book rena steinzor and sidney shapiro take a hard look at the tangled web of problems that have led to this dire state of affairs it turns out that the agencies are not primarily to blame and that regulatory failure actually stems from a host of overlooked causes steinzor and shapiro discover that unrelenting funding cuts a breakdown of the legislative process an increase in the number of political appointees a concurrent loss of experienced personnel chaotic white house oversight and ceaseless political attacks on the bureaucracy all have contributed to the broken system but while the news is troubling the authors also propose a host of reforms including a new model for measuring the success of the agencies and a revitalization of the civil service the people s agents and the battle to protect the american public is an urgent and compelling appeal to renew america s best traditions of public service the secret to good government is a question no one in washington is asking what s the right thing to do what s wrong in washington is deeper than you think yes there s gridlock polarization and self dealing but hidden underneath is something bigger and more destructive it s a broken governing system from that comes wasteful government rising debt failing schools expensive health care and economic hardship rules have replaced leadership in america bureaucracy regulation and outmoded law tie our hands and confine policy choices nobody asks what s the right thing to do here instead they wonder what does the rule book say there s a fatal flaw in america s governing system trying to decree correctness through rigid laws will never work public paralysis is the inevitable result of the steady accretion of detailed rules america is now run by dead people by political leaders from the past who enacted mandatory programs that churn ahead regardless of waste irrelevance or new priorities america needs to radically simplify its operating system and give people officials and citizens alike the freedom to be practical rules can't accomplish our goals only humans can get things done in the rule of nobody philip k howard argues for a return to the framers vision of public law setting goals and boundaries not dictating daily choices this incendiary book explains how america went wrong and offers a guide for how to liberate human ingenuity to meet the challenges of this century streamlining government questions to consider when evaluating proposals to consolidate physical infrastructure and management functions unhyped and therefore unnoticed technology is altering the behavior and mission of city halls statehouses schools and federal agencies across america from transportation to education to elections to law enforcement or as we're now referring to it homeland security the digital revolution is transforming government and politics slashing bureaucracies improving services producing innovative solutions to some of our nation's thorniest problems changing the terms of the left right political debate and offering ordinary people access to a degree of information and individual influence until recently accessible only to the most powerful citizens finally redeeming the founding fathers original vision for our democracy and enriching american life and society in the process based on interviews with over 500 leading politicians researchers technology industry ceos and leaders futurists and front line public employees government 2.0 journeys across america and overseas to demonstrate the promise and perils of this emerging world and offer a likely road map to its implementation you'll hear from technology executives preparing for an onrushing future when for many citizens most government interactions could take place on private sector websites from bureaucrats like osha's ed stern fighting to get their agencies to adopt expert systems technology from william bennett whose virtual education company offers a glimpse into one possible future of american education and from governor jeb bush and former mayor rudolph giuliani as they endeavor to overcome bureaucratic inertia to provide more open efficient and effective governments rich with anecdotes and case studies government 2.0 is a must read for every entrepreneur frustrated by paperwork
