Robert A. M. Stern is one of contemporary architecture's most influential figures with a career encompassing every facet of the profession. He has a flourishing private practice. He is a noted authority on New York architectural history. His own architectural work has been featured in numerous monographs and as dean of the Yale School of Architecture, he has undeniably shaped the field of architectural education as a preeminent force in the discourse of the field. Stern was one of the first critics to use and analyze the term "postmodern" in architecture. This collection of essays, Stern's first, brackets the years defined by the changes in architectural thinking introduced by Robert Venturi in 1966 and the exhibition "Deconstructivist Architecture" at the Museum of Modern Art in 1988. Throughout, Stern provides close readings of architectural events and offers firsthand accounts of transformations in architectural thinking during a critical period.

Modern and Postmodern Cutting Edge Films closely examines a wide variety of major filmic texts that have established permanent iconic shifts in modern and postmodern US culture and filmic practices. These films and their often visionary trend setting auteurs each introduced new manners of seeing that were imitated by later directors and ultimately absorbed by popular culture itself. The primary rationale for writing this collection was quite simple: it is new and different. No anthology exists that examines the concept of the cutting edge film across such a remarkably wide variety of genres and with such a diversity of theoretical approaches and subject matter. Equally important, all the contributors bring a unique voice and multi-disciplinary perspective to their respective chapters. This anthology will be of great interest to scholars from a variety of disciplines including film studies historical studies and gender and genre studies as far as possible contributors have minimized a great deal of typical theoretical terminology so that lay readers who possess some familiarity with basic film analysis and theory can understand the text it can be used as a classroom text in both graduate and upper level undergraduate film classes modern and postmodern cutting edge films is an anthology that instructors of film theory and history can use for many years to come indeed we feel that this remarkable collection of essays will itself become an indispensable cutting edge text of film scholarship while critics collect around the question of what comes after postmodernism this book asks something different about recent american fiction what if we are seeing not the end of postmodernism but its belated success succeeding postmodernism examines how novels by delillo wallace danielewski foer and others conceptualize threats to individuals and communities posed by a poststructural culture of mediation and simulation and possible ways of resisting the disaffected solipsism bred by that culture ultimately it finds that twenty first century american fiction sets aside the postmodern problem of how language does or does not mean in order to raise the reassuringly retro question of what it can and does mean it finds that novels today offer language as solution to the problem of language thus it suggests a new way of reading antihumanist late postmodern fiction and a framework for understanding postmodern and twenty first century fiction as participating in a long and newly enlivened tradition of humanism and realism in literature this groundbreaking collection challenges the accepted principles and practices of sport history and encourages sport historians to be more adventurous in their representations of the sporting past in the present encompassing a wide range of critical approaches leading international sport historians reflect on theory practice and the future of sport history they survey the field of sport history since its inception examine the principles that have governed the production of knowledge in sport history and address the central concerns raised by the postmodern challenge to history sharing a common desire to critique contemporary practices in sport history the contributors raise the level of critical analysis of the production of historical knowledge provide examples of approaches by those who have struggled with or adapted to the postmodern challenge and open up new avenues for future sport historians to follow the author suggests that in this era following the postmodern we have entered a new monist epoch in which aesthetically mediated belief replaces endless irony as the dominant force in culture the book documents the new monism through an examination of popular films and novels such as american beauty life of pi and middlesex as well as in the work of major architects and artists such as sir norman foster andreas gursky and vanessa beecroft book cover
