theorizes an architectural ethos of extreme self reflection and finality from a lacanian perspective while it is widely recognized that the advanced architecture of the 1970s left a legacy of experimentation and theoretical speculation as intense as any in architecture s history there has been no general theory of that ethos now in architecture s desire k michael hays writes an account of the late avant garde as an architecture systematically twisting back on itself pondering its own historical status and deliberately exploring architecture s representational possibilities right up to their absolute limits in close readings of the brooding melancholy silence of aldo rossi the radically reductive decompositions and archaeologies of peter eisenman the carnivalesque excesses of john hejduk and the cinegrammatic delirium of bernard tschumi hays narrates the story of architecture confronting its own boundaries with objects of ever more reflexivity difficulty and intransigence the late avant garde is the last architecture with philosophical aspirations an architecture that could think philosophical problems through architecture rather than merely illustrate them it takes architecture as the object of its own reflection which in turn produces an unrelenting desire using the tools of critical theory together with the structure of lacan s triad imaginary symbolic real hays constructs a theory of architectural desire that is historically specific and yet sets the terms and the challenges of all subsequent architectural practice including today s work of modern theorists like Georg Lukács, Walter Benjamin, Theodor Adorno, and Siegfried Kracauer and on more recent poststructuralist thought K Michael Hays creates an entirely new method of reading architectural production challenging much of the traditional wisdom about modernism and the avant garde. Hays argues that a rigorously articulated posthumanist position was actually developed in the modernist architecture of Hannes Meyer and Ludwig Hilberseimer. He reinterprets their buildings, projects, and writings as constructions of this new category of subjectivity.

In the three essays contained in this book, Mirrors and Ashes, architecture's appearance and the practices of imagination and materiality of figure-figures of materiality Hays offers a more robust way of perceiving architecture, a way of conceiving it in its richness and complexity and also its social importance.

Acclaimed as one of the world's foremost modern architects, Bernard Tschumi achieved early fame by winning the competition to design the Parc de la Villette on the northeast edge of Paris, featuring bright red deconstructivist pavilions. Tschumi is widely credited with leading the Graduate School of Architecture, Planning, and Preservation at New York's Columbia University into the digital age and positioning the school at the forefront of the architectural vanguard. During his fifteen-year tenure, Tschumi has continued to build, and the results are amply illustrated in the first monograph to document Tschumi's full career. This book traces the development of John Hejduk's architectural career using the idea of exorcism to uncover his thought process when examining architectural designs. His work encouraged profound questioning on what, why, and how we build, which allowed for more open discourse and enhanced the phenomenology found in architectural experiences. Three distinct eras in his architectural career are applied to analogies of outlines, apparitions, and angels throughout the book across seven chapters using these thematic examples the author investigates the progression of thought and depth inside the architect's imagination by studying key projects such as the Texas Houses Wall House Architectural Masques and his final works featuring comments by Gloria Fiorentino Hejduk Stanley Tigerman Steven Holl Zaha Hadid Charles Jencks Phyllis Lambert Juhani Pallasmaa Toshiko Mori and others this book brings to life the intricacies in the mind of John Hejduk and would be beneficial for those interested in architecture and design in the 20th century this book brings together a diverse group of theoreticians to explore architectural theory as a discipline assessing its condition and relevance to contemporary practice offering critical assessment in the face of major social and environmental issues of today 17 original contributions address the relevance of architectural theory in the contemporary world from various perspectives including but not limited to politics gender representation race environmental crisis and history the chapters are grouped into two distinct sections the first section explores various historical perspectives on architectural theory mapping theory's historiographical turn and its emergence and decline from the 1960s to the present the second offers alternative visions and new directions for architectural theory incorporating feminist and human rights perspectives and addressing contemporary issues such as artificial intelligence and the age of acceleration this edited collection features contributions from renowned scholars as well as emergent voices with a foreword by David Leatherbarrow this book will be of great interest to graduate and upper level students of architecture as well as academics and practicing architects expanding fields of architectural discourse and practice presents a selection of essays architectural experiments and works that explore the diversity within the fields of contemporary architectural practice and discourse specific in this selection is the question of how and why architecture can and should manifest in a critical and reflective capacity as well as to examine how the discipline currently resonates with contemporary art practice it does so by reflecting on the first 10 years of the architectural journal perspecta. From 2009 to 2019 the volume argues that the initial aims of the journal to explore and celebrate the myriad forms through which architecture can exist are now more relevant than ever to contemporary architectural discourse and practice included in the volume are architectural practitioners design researchers artists architectural theorists historians journalists curators and a paleobiologist all of whom contributed to the first seven issues of the journal here they provide a unique presentation of architectural discourse and practice that seeks to test new ground while forming distinct relationships to recent and more longstanding historical legacies praise for expanding fields of architectural discourse and practice the story told by the authors of this work can thus be considered as the central tool of an architectural transgression critique d art
