in 1797 friedrich schlegel wrote that philosophy of art usually lacks one of two things either the philosophy or the art this collection of essays contains both the philosophy and the art it brings together an international team of leading philosophers to address diverse philosophical issues raised by recent works of art each essay engages with a specific artwork and explores the connection between the image and the philosophical content thirteen contemporary philosophers demonstrate how philosophy can aid interpretation of the work of ten contemporary artists including jesse prinz on john currin barry c smith and edward winters on dexter dalwood lydia goehr and sam rose on tom de freston raymond geuss on adrian ghenie and chantal joffe hallvard lillehammer on paul noble m m mccabe and alexis papazoglou on ged quinn Noël carroll on paula rego simon blackburn and jerrold levinson on george shaw sondra bacharach on yue minjun the discussion ranges over ethical political psychological and religious concepts such as irony disgust apathy inequality physiognomy and wonder to historical experiences of war marx inspired political movements and thatcherism and standard problems in the philosophy of art such as expression style depiction and ontology of art as well as major topics in art history such as vanitas painting photography pornography and dadaism many of the contributors are distinguished in areas of philosophy other than aesthetics and are writing about art for the first time all show how productive the engagement can be between philosophy more generally and art

the classic and provocative account of how art changed irrevocably with pop art and why traditional aesthetics can't make sense of contemporary art a classic of art criticism and philosophy after the end of art continues to generate heated debate for its radical and famous assertion that art ended in the 1960s arthur danto a philosopher who was also one of the leading art critics of his time argues that traditional notions of aesthetics no longer apply to contemporary art and that we need a philosophy of art criticism that can deal with perhaps the most perplexing feature of current art that everything is possible an insightful and entertaining exploration of art's most important aesthetic and philosophical issues conducted by an acute observer of contemporary art after the end of art argues that with the eclipse of abstract expressionism art deviated irrevocably from the narrative course that vasari helped define for it in the renaissance moreover danto makes the case for a new type of criticism that can help us understand art in a posthistorical age where for example an artist can produce a work in the style of Rembrandt to create a visual pun and where traditional theories cannot explain the difference between andy warhol's Brillo box and the product found in the grocery store after the end of art addresses art history pop art people's art the future role of museums and the critical contributions of Clement Greenberg whose aesthetics based criticism helped a previous generation make sense of modernism tracing art history from a mimetic tradition the idea that art was a progressively more adequate representation of reality through the modern era of manifestos when art was defined by the artist's philosophy danto shows that it wasn't until the invention of pop art that the historical understanding of the means and ends of art was nullified even modernist art which tried to break with the past by questioning the ways in which art was produced hinged on a narrative the present volume is a continuation of the series contemporary philosophy as with the earlier volumes in the series the present chronicles purport to give a survey of significant trends in contemporary philosophy the need for such surveys has I believe increased rather than decreased over the years the philosophical scene appears for various reasons more complex than ever before the continuing process of specialization in most branches the increasing contact between philosophers from various cultures the emergence of new schools of thought particularly in philosophical logic and in the philosophy of language and ethics and the increasing attention being paid to the history of philosophy in discussions of contemporary problems are the most important contributing factors surveys of the present kind are a valuable source of knowledge of this complexity the surveys may therefore help to strengthen the Socratic element of modern philosophy the intercultural dialogue or Kommunikationsgemeinschaft so far eight volumes are published in this series viz
