40 or 50 families control the economies of Hong Kong, Singapore, Thailand, the Philippines, and Indonesia. Their interests range from banking to property, from shipping to sugar, from vice to gambling. 13 of the 50 richest families in the world are in Southeast Asia. Yet they are largely unknown outside confined business circles. Often this is because they control the press and television as well as everything else. How do they do it? What are their secrets? And is it good news or bad for the places where they operate? Joe Studwell explosively lifts the lid on a world of staggering secrecy and shows that the little most people know is almost entirely wrong.

In 1960 the GDP per capita of Southeast Asian countries was nearly half of that of Africa. By 1986 the gap had closed and today the trend is reversed: with more than half of the world's poorest now living in Sub-Saharan Africa. Why has Asia developed while Africa lagged? The Asian Aspiration chronicles the stories of explosive growth and changing fortunes, the leaders, events, and policy choices that lifted a billion people out of abject poverty within a single generation. The largest such shift in human history, the relevance of Asia's example comes as Africa is facing a population boom which can either lead to crisis or prosperity. And as Asia is again transforming this time out of low-cost manufacturing into high-tech, leaving a void that is Africa's for the taking. Far from the optimistic determinism of Africa Rising, this book calls for unprecedented pragmatism in the pursuit of african success
