tu b shvat is the new year for the trees as in all other points in the jewish calendar tu b shvat offers a unique opportunity for insight into living and personal growth throughout the centuries kabbalists have used the tree as a metaphor to understand god s relationship to the spiritual and physical worlds moshe chaim lutsatto in his 18th century classic the way of god teaches that the higher spiritual realms are roots that ultimately manifest their influence through branches and leaves in the lower realms in the 16th century the kabbalists of tzfat compiled a tu b shvat seder somewhat similar to the seder for passover it involves enjoying the fruits of the tree particularly those native to the land of israel and discusses philosophical and kabbalistic concepts associated with the day among other things the seder is a great way to appreciate the bounty that we so often take for granted and to develop a good and generous eye for the world around us the seder presented here is based primarily on the kabbalistic work h□emdat yamim later published separately under the title pri eitz hadar

our master rabbi yosef karo of blessed memory wrote that it is good to say the passage of the manna in order to strengthen our belief that our entire livelihood down to the tiniest detail comes through hashem's providence rabenu bah ya mentions a tradition handed down by our sages that anyone who says the passage of the manna is promised that he will never lack sustenance the author of yesh noh lin states i found in the writings of the kabbalists that one should say each verse twice followed by the targum onkelos rabbi h ayim palazzi and his son rabbi yitsh ak concur and add that the shevet mussar and kemah solet concur as well indeed rabbi h ayim vital was accustomed to reading this passage before shah arit until rabenu haari told him to stop according to the shaarey teshuvah rabbi yaakov emdin and kaf hah ayim it appears that the ari was against reading it before the prayers but would agree that doing so after the prayers are permitted
